Being a Coach for Career Development: Coaching Conversations

COURSE INFORMATION

Description
A career is different than a job. This session, designed for managers, discusses the differences, provides a framework for productive career coaching conversations, and discusses potential barriers to conducting these conversations. The session will focus on how to assist employees with exploring their skills as it relates to their career growth and aspirations. Specifically, you will be able to:

- articulate the differences between a job and a career
- recognize the importance of career development for your employees
- apply knowledge learned about how to execute a career coaching conversation
- discuss the barriers to implementation of career coaching conversations
