VISION

College
Consistent with the Jesuit tradition of Saint Louis University, the College for Public Health & Social Justice continually strives for excellence in scholarship through nationally and internationally recognized performance in teaching, research and service. The core of our mission is to seek truth, but as a Catholic, Jesuit institution we acknowledge that simply seeking truth is not enough. The methods we use to discover truth, the ends for which it is sought, and the ways in which it illuminates the world further are all essential aspects of our mission.

HMP Department
The Department of Health Management and Policy will continue to be recognized for its accomplishments in teaching, research and service. Our Department is distinguished by the Jesuit, Catholic identity of the University; its focus on ethical leadership; its pioneering work in competency-based education; and its emphasis on improving the health of populations. As part of a School of Public Health, we place special emphasis on evidence-based policy and innovations in the delivery and evaluation of health services as we continually strive to be at the forefront of health management and policy education and research.
