You are called by the Society of Jesus to be men and women who reflect upon the reality of the world around you with all its ambiguities, opportunities, and challenges, to discern what is really happening in your life and in the lives of others, to find God there and to discover where God is calling you, to employ criteria for significant choices that reflect Godly values rather than narrow, exclusive self-interest, to make decisions in the light of what is truly for the greater glory of God and the service of those in need, and then to act accordingly.

Peter Hans Kolvenbach, S.J.
Superior General of the Society of Jesus
World Congress of Jesuit Alumni/ae
Sydney, Australia, 1997

Though every Jesuit school lives out its character in its own distinctive way, each has inherited the same vision of the founder of the Jesuits, St. Ignatius Loyola (1491-1556). Ignatius’ vision provides both principles of action and goals not yet completely achieved. It is a profoundly human vision, open to all, based on the biblical conviction that the world God made is good and that human beings can, in partnership with God, make it a better place for all people to live and grow.

Saint Louis University is a community filled with faith – faith in human beings, and, for many, faith in a creating and loving God. It is a community in love with the glories of the universe and the wonders of the human mind and heart. It is a community that instinctively understands what Ignatius meant when he said “to love God in all things.” According to Ignatius, the activities of learning, research and seeking the truth are ways to encounter and praise God.

The following summary of the Ignatian vision is but an outline of the wisdom and practice of Jesuit educators gathered over 450 years and adapted to this time and place.

The Saint Louis University Mission
The Mission of Saint Louis University is the pursuit of truth for the greater glory of God and for the service of humanity. The University seeks excellence in the fulfillment of its corporate purposes of teaching, research and community service. It is dedicated to leadership in the continuing quest for understanding of God's creation, and for the discovery, dissemination and integration of the values, knowledge and skills required to transform society in the spirit of the Gospels. As a Catholic, Jesuit university, the pursuit is motivated by the inspiration and values of the Judeo-Christian tradition and is guided by the spiritual and intellectual ideals of the Society of Jesus.
The Jesuit Challenge

You are called by the Society of Jesus to be men and women who reflect upon the reality of the world around you, with all its ambiguities, opportunities and challenges, to discern what is really happening in your life and in the lives of others, to find God there and to discover where God is calling you, to employ criteria for significant choices that reflect Godly values rather than narrow, self-exclusive self-interest, to make decisions in the light of what is truly for the greater glory of God and the service of those in need, and then to act accordingly.

Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, S.J., Superior General of the Society of Jesus World Congress of Jesuit Alumni
Sydney, Australia, 1997

The Jesuit Mission of Saint Louis University

The Mission of Saint Louis University is the pursuit of truth for the greater glory of God and for the service of humanity. The University seeks excellence in the fulfillment of its corporate purposes of teaching, research and community service. It is dedicated to leadership in the continuing quest for understanding of God's creation, and for the discovery, dissemination and integration of the values, knowledge and skills required to transform society in the spirit of the Gospels. As a Catholic, Jesuit university, the pursuit is motivated by the inspiration and values of the Judeo-Christian tradition and is guided by the spiritual and intellectual ideals of the Society of Jesus.

http://jesuitmission.slu.edu

The Saint Louis University Mission

The Mission of Saint Louis University is the pursuit of truth for the greater glory of God and for the service of humanity. The University seeks excellence in the fulfillment of its corporate purposes of teaching, research and community service. It is dedicated to leadership in the continuing quest for understanding of God’s creation, and for the discovery, dissemination and integration of the values, knowledge and skills required to transform society in the spirit of the Gospels. As a Catholic, Jesuit university, the pursuit is motivated by the inspiration and values of the Judeo-Christian tradition and is guided by the spiritual and intellectual ideals of the Society of Jesus.

www.slu.edu

Though every Jesuit school lives out its character in its own distinctive way, each has inherited the same vision of the founder of the Jesuits, St. Ignatius Loyola (1491-1556). Ignatius’ vision provides both principles of action and goals not yet completely achieved. It is a profoundly human vision, open to all, based on the biblical conviction that the world God made is good and that human beings can, in partnership with God, make it a better place for all people to live and grow.

Saint Louis University is a community filled with faith – faith in human beings and, for many, faith in a creating and loving God. It is a community in love with the glories of the universe and the wonders of the human mind and heart. It is a community that instinctively understands what Ignatius meant when he said “God is in all things.” According to Ignatius, the activities of learning, research and seeking the truth are ways to encounter and praise God.

The following summary of the Ignatian vision is but an outline of the wisdom and practice of Jesuit educators gathered over 450 years and adapted to this time and place.
The Jesuits

The Society of Jesus was founded in 1540 by a Spaniard, Ignatius of Loyola. This religious organization of Roman Catholic priests and brothers, whose members are known as Jesuits, numbers almost 20,000. They live and work in 113 countries. There are approximately 3,000 American Jesuits involved in education, parishes, spirituality centers, social ministries, and international works ranging from biblical studies to refugee service. Some 4,000 Jesuits and 74,000 of their colleagues provide education in 56 countries in an astonishing variety of types and levels, including 356 high schools and 186 higher education institutions. In the United States, Jesuits work with at-risk students in grade schools and serve in 47 high schools, 28 colleges and universities and two graduate schools of theology.

A Jesuit University is a Catholic University...

as such it is a learning community where men and women of different traditions foster the search for meaning and the continuing dialogue between faith and culture.

Christian in inspiration and grounded in an institutional fidelity to the Christian message as transmitted by Catholic teaching.

faithful to the centuries old intellectual tradition that asserts the intrinsic value of human reason and which maintains that faith and intellect illuminate each other.

pledged to academic freedom and freedom of conscience within a framework of moral values, ethical behavior, civil rights and mutual respect -- respect by the individual for the Catholic identity of the institution and by the institution for the freedom of conscience and religious liberty of the individual.

committed to integrating faith with life, to examining moral and ethical implications present in each discipline and to viewing religious experience and religious questions as integral to the understanding of human existence and culture.

A Jesuit University is:

based on St. Ignatius Loyola's vision of the fundamental goodness of the world, the belief that God can be encountered in all things, that faith and reason illuminate each other and that human activity is a creative partnership with God.

enriched by a diversity of ideas, cultures and religious commitments and marked by a reverence for each individual.

distinguished by its teaching and research and by a humanism that cultivates the mind, develops the imagination and enlarges the spirit.

characterized by analytical thinking, commitment to justice and humane values, ethical decision making and effective action for the common good.

identified by a spirit that seeks to rise above the ordinary and reach toward endless possibilities to excel in learning to live more fully and generously and to take leadership in building a better world.

Our purpose in education is to form men and women “for others.” The Society of Jesus has always sought to imbue students with values that transcend the goals of money, fame and success. We want graduates who will be leaders concerned about society and the world in which they live. We want graduates who desire to eliminate hunger and conflict in the world. We want graduates who seek to end sexual and social discrimination and who are eager to share their faith with others.

In short, we want our graduates to be leading-in-service. That has been the goal of Jesuit education since the sixteenth century. It remains so today.

Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, S.J.
Superior General of the Society of Jesus
On the 200th anniversary of the founding of Georgetown University, 1989

As a Jesuit University, Saint Louis University:

emphasizes academic excellence, active participation in the educational process, discovery of new knowledge, practical application of theory and lifelong learning.

seeks students, faculty and staff who appreciate the intellectual challenge of freely examining different systems, traditions and beliefs as they consider the question “How ought we to live?”

challenges all to attain the inner freedom necessary to make the difficult decisions that change for the better one’s own life and the lives of others.

desires to transform the world by forming men and women who are committed to work with, and serve the needs of others.
The Jesuit Challenge

You are called by the Society of Jesus to be men and women who reflect upon the reality of the world around you with all its ambiguities, opportunities, and challenges to discern what is really happening in your life and in the lives of others, to find God there and to discover where God is calling you, to employ criteria for significant choices that reflect Godly values rather than narrow, exclusive self-interest, to make decisions in the light of what is truly for the greater glory of God and the service of those in need,
and then to act accordingly.

Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, S.J.
Superior General of the Society of Jesus
World Congress of Jesuit Alumni/ae
Sydney, Australia, 1997

The Saint Louis University Mission

The Mission of Saint Louis University is the pursuit of truth for the greater glory of God and for the service of humanity. The University seeks excellence in the fulfillment of its corporate purposes of teaching, research and community service. It is dedicated to leadership in the continuing quest for understanding of God's creation, and for the discovery, dissemination and integration of the values, knowledge and skills required to transform society in the spirit of the Gospels. As a Catholic, Jesuit university, the pursuit is motivated by the inspiration and values of the Judeo-Christian tradition and is guided by the spiritual and intellectual ideals of the Society of Jesus.

http://jesuitmission.slu.edu

Though every Jesuit school lives out its character in its own distinctive way, each has inherited the same vision of the founder of the Jesuits, St. Ignatius Loyola (1491-1556). Ignatius' vision provides both principles of action and goals not yet completely achieved. It is a profoundly human vision, open to all, based on the biblical conviction that the world God made is good and that human beings can, in partnership with God, make it a better place for all people to live and grow.

Saint Louis University is a community filled with faith — faith in human beings and, for many, faith in a creating and loving God. It is a community in love with the glories of the universe and the wonders of the human mind and heart. It is a community that instinctively understands what Ignatius meant when he said “Love God in all things.” According to Ignatius, the activities of learning, research and seeking the truth are ways to encounter and praise God.

The following summary of the Ignatian vision is but an outline of the wisdom and practice of Jesuit educators gathered over 450 years and adapted to this time and place.

Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, S.J.