John Cook School of Business
http://slu.edu/business.xml

The School of Business was founded in 1910 as a distinct unit of Saint Louis University, one of the first schools in the American West to provide business education at the university level. In fall 2000, the school was named for alumnus John Cook in recognition of his many contributions to the business school and university.

The instructional activities of the John Cook School of Business are founded on certain fundamental principles. First, the school seeks to support the development of its students by means of selected disciplines which cultivate critical and analytical thinking, leadership, and written and oral communication skills. Second, the school encourages the development of intellectual, moral, and social habits, which distinguish its graduates as ethical leaders in their chosen fields of business and in their communities. Further, the school aids its graduates in the pursuit of their chosen professional objectives and guides its students in the selection of their business careers.

The John Cook School of Business offers a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration (B.S.B.A.) with concentrations available in multiple business disciplines. The school continues to educate, in the unique Jesuit tradition, well rounded, knowledgeable, skilled, and ethical business graduates who are ready to assume leadership roles in a variety of organizations.

Accreditation

Selecting a business school is one of the most important decisions a student makes; therefore, high standards should be set. The premier business school accrediting body, the AACSB International (Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business), governs the standards by which business schools are evaluated.

Achieving AACSB accreditation in the field of business education ensures continuous quality improvement in the learning environment through enhancements to the curriculum, instructional resources, student selection, career planning and placement, and the intellectual contributions and qualifications of the faculty.

The faculty and staff of the John Cook School of Business are proud of our accreditation status and believe that it places us in a category of distinction among our peers. Less than 10% of business schools worldwide have achieved AACSB accreditation. Students who choose to attend an AACSB accredited business school join an environment where learning matters, and where a highly qualified faculty guides the students’ study through a curriculum relevant to contemporary business needs and practices.

Principles for Responsible Management Education

In December 2008 as Wall Street was crumbling, a few blocks away a group of universities from across the globe had gathered at the United Nations to define actions that they should take to support a new approach for business in society. The Principles for Responsible Management Education, PRME, are a call to transform curricula, research and teaching methodologies based on the universal values of sustainability, social responsibility, and good corporate citizenship. The John Cook School of Business was pleased to be a signatory since PRME reflects our values and traditions.

Cook Scholars – 3-Year Degree Program
This program is available only to entering freshmen with at least a 30 ACT or 1330 SAT and a 3.75 GPA. This program will allow students to complete the business degree in only three calendar years, including summer courses. The curriculum is the same as our traditional 4-year degree program; this is only a time-shortened, not content-shortened program. As a Cook Scholar, students will have guaranteed enrollment in business classes (not particular sections) as long as the curriculum plan is followed. To remain in the program, students will need to maintain at least a 3.5 cumulative SLU GPA.

Cook Scholars 3+3 Accelerated Program with Law School
Pre-professional study is a strength at Saint Louis University and business is a great foundation for the study of law. The John Cook School of Business and Saint Louis University’s School of Law offer a 3+3 combined bachelor’s degree and law degree. This program allows students to earn a bachelor of science in business administration and a Juris Doctor degree in six years instead of the traditional seven years. Students with a 3.7 undergraduate GPA at the time of application to SLU LAW (during 3rd year of undergraduate program) will receive guaranteed admission to the law school. Students will need to submit an LSAT score at the time of application to SLU LAW. This score will not be taken into consideration for admission into SLU LAW but will be used for consideration in any merit-based scholarship decision.

Accounting Scholars Program
This program is available only to entering freshmen whose high school scholastic achievement and admission test scores demonstrate superior academic potential. Detailed information can be found on the following pages.

Integrated Accounting Program
The Integrated Accounting Program will allow students the opportunity to complete both the undergraduate and graduate degrees in accounting simultaneously. Detailed information can be found on the following pages.

CFA Program Partner
The Department of Finance is a CFA Program Partner. This initiative is a relationship between the CFA Institute and select colleges and universities around the world (less than 170 schools worldwide are CFA Program Partners). Detailed information can be found on the following pages.

SAP University Alliance
The John Cook School of Business is a member of the SAP University Alliance, which allows the school to provide students in certain courses with hands-on experience with SAP software. This enables students to put classroom theory into practice. Students who possess a workable knowledge of enterprise resource planning (ERP) using SAP software have the opportunity to obtain an SAP Certificate awarded by SAP America, Inc. This requires the completion of three courses that utilize SAP software. For more information go to:
http://slu.edu/business/academic-departments/operations-and-information-technology-management

The Nielsen Company Partnership
The Marketing Department and The Nielsen Company have partnered to bring Nielsen’s data and data analysis tools into the department’s Marketing Analytics course. Nielsen provides training to the faculty and student access to the same data and tools used by their support analysts. This partnership provides students with current industry concepts and tools that are especially useful and relevant in the burgeoning area of marketing analytics.

Degree-Enhancing Opportunities

Internship Program
In today’s competitive business environment, it is imperative that students gain career-related experience prior to graduation. Recognizing this necessity, the Cook School provides an internship program that includes resources on finding an internship, resume review, cover letter writing assistance, and interview skill development. The school maintains relationships with employers in the St. Louis region and throughout the United States, representing a variety of industries including corporate, government, and non-profit organizations. These relationships provide juniors and seniors a wide range of choices for their internship experiences. An internship may provide up to three hours of course credit within the curriculum, allowing students opportunities to combine classroom learning with practical, career-related work experience under the supervision of practicing professionals. Whether or not a student receives course credit, the Cook School encourages all students to participate in an internship to enhance their academic studies, understand the business world, develop business relationships and build work experience.

For more information about the Internship program, go to http://www.slu.edu/business/career-resources

FOCUS Program (Focus On Careers for Undergraduate Students)
The business school believes the future and success of its students are highly important; so important that the school has designed the FOCUS Program to help students be successful as a student and a professional. The program is designed to help students pro-actively identify a potential career path, learn and practice skills that will help to secure internships and full-time opportunities upon graduation. This four-year career development program is a required degree component and consists of assessments, workshops, career fairs, and networking events with employers, alumni and executives. For more information, go to http://www.slu.edu/business/career-resources

Service Leadership Program
Through the nationally recognized (The Templeton Guide: Colleges that Encourage Character Development) Service Leadership Program, students have the opportunity to bridge Ignatian philosophy with academic learning, personal experiences, and reflection. The Sustainable Business Practices Track within the Service Leadership Program prepares students to be conscientious and socially responsible business leaders with a special focus on the triple bottom line of people, planet, and profit. Detailed information regarding the Service Leadership Program can be found on the following pages.

Study Abroad/Exchange/Short-Term Immersion Opportunities
With the increasing globalization of business, it is important for graduates to understand the subtle ways business practice in all jobs can be impacted by differences in culture, politics, economies, geographies, and religions. While curriculum can provide exposure to these concepts, an overseas immersion experience will provide real-life learning. Options range from a large selection of full semester destinations to shorter summer programs or even one to two week courses.

The John Cook School of Business offers several exchange programs where international business schools send students to SLU and SLU sends students to their schools in Belgium, China, Denmark, France, Germany, Hong Kong, Korea, and Sweden. Business students may also participate in shorter summer programs or even a one-week study abroad in January to Panama, Central America. Additional destinations are under consideration to provide more selection. Through the SLU Office of International Services, business students have access to a large list of study abroad destinations around the world—including our SLU Madrid campus, which provides students with an IB or Economics concentration the option to complete the degree in Spain.

Due to the requirement that the last 30 hours be completed in residence at the St. Louis campus, students should begin planning their immersion experience early in their academic careers for travel in the sophomore year or early in the junior year. (Students selecting the option to pursue an IB or Economics concentration in Madrid will receive an exception to this residency requirement.)

For help identifying destinations, please contact the Department of International Business located in the Boeing Institute for International Business (Cook 332, schneikl@slu.edu) or attend one of the Study Abroad Information Sessions for Business Students held at the start of each semester. Once a potential study abroad site has been selected, a business school academic advisor will evaluate the courses to determine SLU equivalents. Note that all grades earned will be included in the SLU GPA. Assistance with the application process is available through the Department of International Business as well as the International Services office.

Academic advisors also provide information about internships and study abroad opportunities. In addition, the academic advisors serve as the liaison between students and a number of student-centered services available on campus. Business school students also have faculty mentors. These mentors provide career advice and general guidance. Faculty mentors are also available to discuss students’ personal and educational goals.
Honors, Pre-Law, and Pre-Professional Health Studies Programs
The Cook School of Business participates in the University’s Honors, Pre-Law, and Pre-Professional Health Studies programs. Students in each of these programs have the opportunity to complete a major in business in addition to any required program courses. Information regarding these programs can be found elsewhere in the Undergraduate catalog.

Double Undergraduate Degrees
See section under University Academic Policies and Procedures. (Programs outside of the business school requiring 30 or more credit hours of business coursework may NOT be combined with the business degree.)

Transfer Credit Guidelines/Concurrent Enrollment
Students interested in transferring credit from another institution should contact Undergraduate Student Services in the Cook School of Business to determine applicability of transfer coursework toward graduation requirements. Students must earn a grade of “C” or higher in any approved transfer courses. Continuing students must receive approval PRIOR to enrolling in courses away from SLU. The transferability of online courses is limited to a maximum of two courses, and exams for online courses must be given in a proctored setting or they will not be considered for transfer. Full-time, business degree-seeking students may NOT take courses concurrently at other institutions during the fall and spring semesters unless offered through an inter-university agreement. Students are limited to 9 hours of summer coursework; however, students with at least a 3.0 GPA may petition to take up to 12 hours of summer work.

Undergraduate Students taking Graduate Business Courses
Undergraduate students are generally not permitted to enroll in graduate business courses; however, seniors with at least a 3.0 cumulative SLU GPA may petition to take up to six hours of graduate coursework in the last semester of their senior year. Approval by the assistant dean is required.

Pass/Fail Option
The Cook School of Business does NOT allow the pass/fail option to ANY undergraduate student enrolled in business courses. In addition, business students may NOT take ANY course on a pass/fail basis if the course is used to fulfill degree requirements.

Repeating Courses
See section under University Academic Policies and Procedures.

Academic Probation/Dismissal
Students whose cumulative SLU grade point average falls below 2.0 are required to apply for probationary status, which allows for no more than two consecutive semesters to improve scholastically and to demonstrate the ability to make progress toward a degree.

During the probationary period, advisors help students achieve academic success by closely monitoring their academic performance. Students on probation may register for not more than 15 hours of coursework as defined by the terms of the probation and may not submit application for degree.

The conditions under which a student is dismissed from the school include: 1) inability to eliminate probationary status within the two semesters subsequent to the assignment of probation OR 2) a total grade point deficit of more than 15 points.

For more information, see section under University Academic Policies and Procedures.

Graduation Honors
See section under University Academic Policies and Procedures.

Academic Integrity
Students, faculty, and staff members share the responsibility to maintain a learning environment of mutual trust and integrity. Academic dishonesty violates this trust and may result in grade reduction and/or probation, suspension, or dismissal. Dishonest conduct includes, but is not limited to, plagiarism and soliciting, receiving, or providing any unauthorized assistance, including the use of technological devices, in the completion of any work submitted toward academic credit. It is the responsibility of any student who observes such dishonest conduct to call it to the attention of a faculty member or administrator.

For more information, see section under University Academic Policies and Procedures.

Curriculum

The business school’s undergraduate curriculum is developed by the faculty and is guided by standards set by the premier business school accrediting body, the AACSB International. In addition, to assist in ensuring that the curriculum is up-to-date and relevant, the school and many of the departments have advisory boards that allow interaction with the business and professional communities.

The curriculum affords both important breadth and depth of knowledge necessary to prepare students for success in today’s diverse and highly technical business world. The core curriculum provides a breadth of knowledge by combining a strong Arts and Sciences core (48 credit hours) with Business Common Body of Knowledge (CBK) coursework (44 credit hours), which includes studies in multiple business disciplines: accounting, economics, finance, information technology management, international business, management, marketing, and operations management.

Beyond the business CBK coursework and the Arts and Sciences core, a depth of knowledge is achieved through advanced courses in a business concentration (15-18 credit hours) of the student’s choice: accounting, economics, entrepreneurship, finance, information technology management, international business (also requires 12 credit hours of foreign language), leadership and change management, marketing, and sports business.

Business majors may supplement a chosen concentration with a second concentration and/or a supporting area in a different business discipline. However, a double concentration within the business school is not considered a double undergraduate degree; students completing more than one concentration and/or supporting area within the business school will receive one Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degree, with the transcript indicating the multiple concentrations and/or supporting areas. If a business course overlaps between two business areas, it may be counted only once and credited to one functional area, i.e. Sports Marketing may be used to satisfy a Marketing concentration requirement or a Sports Business concentration requirement, but not both.

Business majors may also elect to pursue minors and majors offered in fields outside of business (See those programs for specific requirements.).

Accounting is the language of business. As organizations become more complex, accountants constantly improve the processing, reporting and interpreting of information about organizational activities. Accounting is a career that involves people, with accountants heavily interacting with others in decision-making and problem-solving in modern business. With the accounting concentration, students gain an understanding of how information is identified, measured, communicated and used. Essentially, accountants are trained in the area of information processing and analysis.

Students may choose to graduate with the 120-hour bachelor’s degree; however, students who plan to take the CPA examination will be required to complete 150 hours of college credit as a prerequisite for taking the exam. Students may accumulate the 150 required hours in several ways: complete 150 hours at the undergraduate level; complete the 120 hour bachelor’s degree and complete the 30 hour Master of Accounting degree sequentially; or complete the Integrated Accounting Program (details below), which allows students the opportunity to complete both the undergraduate and graduate degrees in accounting simultaneously. The GMAT (Graduate Management Admission Test) requirement for entry into the Master of Accounting program will be waived for SLU accounting undergraduates with a GPA of at least a 3.6. The Department of Accounting also offers an Accounting Scholars Program (details below) for qualified incoming freshmen.

Accounting Scholars Program
This program is available only to entering freshmen whose high school scholastic achievement and admission test scores demonstrate superior academic potential. Accounting Scholars who complete the program requirements are guaranteed a seat in Saint Louis University’s Integrated Accounting Program (see below) and will be given priority consideration for graduate level scholarships. Accounting Scholars will not be required to take the GMAT (Graduate Management Admission Test), but must formally submit application material to the Integrated Accounting Program to complete their admission.

Requirements:
- Composite ACT score of at least 30 or a combined SAT score of at least 1330 (math and verbal);
- High School GPA of at least 3.6 (weighted or unweighted);

To remain in the program, students must:
- have at least a 3.5 cumulative GPA at the end of each year.
- complete select coursework and other activities as determined by the Accounting Department.

Integrated Accounting Program
The Integrated Accounting Program will allow students the opportunity to complete both the undergraduate and graduate degrees in accounting simultaneously. This program is designed for students entering SLU with:
1) a university scholarship AND 2) college credit earned prior to entering SLU. There may be a financial aid advantage to this option. Any unused undergraduate university scholarship may be applied while enrolled in master level coursework.
For admission into this program, a student’s overall GPA and GMAT (Graduate Management Admission Test) score are very important. As a general rule, a student with a GPA of at least 3.5 and GMAT score of at least 500 will be admissible into the program (GMAT will be waived for SLU accounting undergraduates with a GPA of at least a 3.6). Students may apply to be admitted to this program upon completion of (a) a minimum of 75 semester credit hours of college credit (including a minimum of 15 semester credit hours at SLU) with a cumulative grade point average of 3.0 or higher; (b) an upper level accounting class taken at SLU with a grade of “B” or higher.

Finance involves the study of financial markets and institutions, the valuation of financial assets, and the use of those assets to accumulate wealth and/or mitigate risk. Virtually every business activity requires the deployment of financial capital; thus the field of finance is relevant across the spectrum of economic activity. Students obtaining a concentration in finance have opportunities in investment and risk management, capital acquisition and consulting.

Finance students are strongly encouraged to take additional courses in accounting. Although ACCT 220 and 222 are required of all business majors, many employers look favorably upon additional accounting courses. In addition, the CFA level 1 exam requires knowledge of accounting that goes beyond the two core courses.

The Department of Finance is a CFA Program Partner. This initiative is a relationship between the CFA Institute and select colleges and universities around the world (less than 170 schools worldwide are CFA Program Partners) that have embedded a significant percentage (70%) of the CFA Program Candidate Body of Knowledge into their degree programs. In addition, these institutions have committed to covering CFA Institute ethical and professional standards in these degree programs. Recognition as a CFA Partner provides a signal to potential students, current students, and the marketplace that the university curriculum is closely tied to professional practice and is well suited to preparing students to sit for the CFA exams.

The Department of Finance has created two tracks within the finance concentration: Financial Analysis track and Financial Planning track. (See below for requirements.)

The undergraduate concentration in Information Technology Management (ITM) is designed to prepare business students for careers as information systems professionals. The program of study focuses on educating students about the development and use of information systems as decision-making and problem-solving tools in a business environment. Students develop the technical skills and organizational insights required to analyze, design, implement, and manage information systems with an emphasis on the application of web-based and object-oriented information technologies. Courses require extensive hands-on projects, teamwork, and use of high-end computer technology. Typical career options for students graduating with a BSBA with a concentration in ITM include systems analyst, database administrator, software/web developer, IT consultant, and information systems manager.

The John Cook School of Business is a member of the SAP University Alliance, which allows the school to provide students in certain courses with hands-on experience with SAP software (the world leader in enterprise software). This enables students to put classroom theory into practice. Students who possess a workable knowledge of enterprise resource planning (ERP) using SAP software have the opportunity to obtain an SAP Certificate awarded by SAP America, Inc. Marketing is a core function for organizations and businesses of all sizes. Marketing focuses first and foremost on customers—understanding them, attracting them and maintaining their loyalty. In this way, marketing undertakes the management of demand.

Marketing develops and tests product concepts, designs merchandising and promotional campaigns, creates and manages the relationship with the customer, collects and analyzes information about the marketplace and creates and carries out the sales plans that generate profit for the firm. Academic courses therefore undertake the analysis of buyer behavior, study integrated methods of marketing communications and closely consider the management and implementation of a wide range of marketing strategies and tactics.

The Marketing Department values and retains close ties with businesses and non-profits. For example, the Marketing Department and The Nielsen Company have partnered to bring Nielsen’s data and data analysis tools into the department’s Marketing Analytics course. Annually the Marketing Department conducts a “live case-study” in which a business professional presents an actual marketing problem that he or she faced (or is currently facing) and challenges the undergraduate marketing students to debate, discuss and help solve practical marketing problems. The Marketing Department is also fully engaged in new forms of electronic commerce that incorporate social media and digital marketing. Current and new course offerings integrate traditional marketing with new non-traditional methods and techniques.

The faculty also supports students engaged in internships and provides other support and encouragement as they consider and pursue various career options. Students with multi-disciplinary interests and desiring to keep a range of career options open may also find marketing a good fit. Students with interests in healthcare management, sports business, international business and entrepreneurship often do focused studies in the marketing area. An active Advisory Board also provides students with access to a network of professionals.

The marketing program is a practical and career-oriented one. Students in the undergraduate marketing program offered by Saint Louis University’s John Cook School of Business enhance their prospects for meaningful employment and substantive contributions to society at large.

Co-curricular Programs for Business Majors

http://business.slu.edu/serviceleadership

Saint Louis University strives to develop leaders who demonstrate competence, conscience, compassion and commitment to community by integrating the strong traditions of Jesuit education with the fundamentals of leadership. The John Cook School of Business serves the St. Louis community by educating business students who graduate ready to assume leadership roles in a variety of occupations.

The Service Leadership Program provides students in the John Cook School of Business the opportunity to develop and hone their leadership skills while serving the St. Louis Community. By volunteering at service sites such as Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Cardinal Glennon Children's Hospital, Campus Kitchen, or one of the many other sites that are available, students will practice critical thinking, decision making, effective communication, and team building. These are some of the skills that will help students become more effective business leaders.

The Service Leadership Program requires that students complete:

- 15 credit hours of specified coursework
- 300 hours of community service
- 24 leadership workshops

The required 15 hours of coursework can be fulfilled through normal business degree requirements. Courses may be selected from an array of disciplines including African American Studies, Communication, History, Philosophy, Psychology, Public Policy, Social Work, Sociology, and Theology.

There are numerous, exciting opportunities for Service Leaders to complete their community service. The available service sites are diverse, and each one provides opportunities to gain meaningful leadership experience and make personal connections while serving the economically poor and marginalized of society.

Each year, 10 leadership workshops are offered through the Service Leadership Program with topics ranging from humor to ethical decision making and from personal reflection to professionalism. While Service Leaders are not expected to attend all of these workshops, they are expected to complete 24 by the time they finish the program. Students are encouraged to select workshops that will be most helpful in promoting their individual growth as a leader.

Sustainable Business Practices Track within Service Leadership Program
http://slu.edu/x49886.xml

The Sustainable Business Practices Track within the Service Leadership Program in the John Cook School of Business prepares students to be conscientious and socially responsible business leaders with a special focus on the triple bottom line of people, planet, and profit. To complete the track, students must fulfill the same program requirements as the traditional Service Leadership Program: 300 community service hours, 24 leadership workshops, and 15 hours of coursework. However, from the above listed requirements, the Sustainable Business Practices track diverges in the following ways:

Coursework
Of the 15 hours of course work required for the Service Leadership Program, 6 hours must come from the following Center for Sustainability courses: Sustainability Foundations (MOS 502) and Sustainable Business Practices (MOS 505). In many cases, students are able to work these courses into their normal degree requirements and therefore do not have to take extra credit hours to complete the track.

Community Service/Field Work
Students must complete 100 hours of field work. This requirement may be subtracted from the 300 hours of service required for the Service Leadership Program and can be satisfied through a faculty-supervised field project, a sustainability-related internship, or approved community service projects. The remaining 200 hours of service must be completed at an approved Service Leadership service site.

Workshops
Students must attend the standard 24 leadership workshops that the Service Leadership Program dictates. However, of the 24 workshops, 6 of the workshops must be from a sustainability-focused workshop or seminar. These seminars include events such as the Ameren Sustainability Speaker Series, the Dean's Breakfast speakers, Center for Sustainability events and other activities deemed appropriate by the Program coordinator.

Minors for Non-Business Majors
http://www.slu.edu/business/undergraduate-business-programs/minors

Students enrolled in some traditional degree programs outside the business school may complete one or more of the school’s minors: Business Administration, Human Resource Management, Information Technology Management, International Business, Marketing, and Sports Business. All courses are three credit hours.

Minor in Business Administration
In response to the demand for career oriented degree programs, the John Cook School of Business, in cooperation with other University departments, developed the Minor in Business Administration. Students in some traditional degree programs outside the School of Business complete 30 hours of specified business coursework for this minor.
