With flowers in bloom and fountains back on you know Spring is finally here!

Video Interviewing with Students is now Available

We understand the importance of being able to see candidates when you interview them and the difficulties of telephone interviews. We also understand the concerns of students pertaining to online video interviews including strength and consistency of signal, interruptions from roommates, and finding a quiet place to go. In the summer of 2013, we installed video conference equipment in our conference room that is now available to students and employers for the purposes of online video interviewing.

The space and system can be used for full On-Campus Recruiting sessions or for individually scheduled interviews (pending availability).

The equipment is wired directly into the university's network and includes an HD camera, microphone, and a 60" display. The system is capable of using Google Hangouts, Skype, and Fuze (a web conferencing system that requires no software to download).

Community Involvement:
Our staff recently participated in training provided by Betsy Cohan of the St. Louis Mosaic Project, part of the World Trade Center-St. Louis and the St. Louis Economic Development Partnership, pertaining to immigration, visas, and how we support our international students and alumni in their job search.

The goal of the St. Louis Mosaic Project is to make St. Louis the fastest growing region for immigrants of the major metropolitan areas by 2020. It is about regional prosperity through immigration and innovation. We are educating organizations about the legal steps required to hire (as interns or full time) international students or other international candidates through a network of local immigration attorneys. We are counseling international students on the visa process to receive internships and long term employment in the St. Louis area. This initiative is supported by a top level steering committee of community leaders, including top deans from five leading universities.

We want to enhance the local talent by providing the international students who come to school in the St. Louis area with job opportunities. This will grow the region’s population, talent, and cultural diversity. With most large companies and organizations looking to enhance inclusivity and diversity, considering international talent is one way to do so.
