About the CORE Evaluation

This survey is designed to assess your institution's efforts to prevent and respond to campus sexual violence. It will cover practices and policies mandated by federal law as well as those recommended by experts in the field. Keep in mind not all the elements in the assessment will be possible or necessary or recommended for your campus. Questions on this assessment should not be implicitly understood as Culture of Respect recommendations. Survey questions are included to encourage you to think holistically about responding to and preventing sexual violence, and also to allow your institution to document gaps and strengths in its current strategy.

This assessment will use the phrase sexual violence as an umbrella term that encompasses any non-consensual sexual contact, including sexual harassment, sexual exploitation, sexual assault, rape, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking. The purpose of grouping these behaviors under one umbrella term is to acknowledge that all are connected. Though the mechanisms for addressing some of the harms inside the umbrella of sexual violence may be distinct, any effort to address them should acknowledge how they are interrelated. In thinking about how it applies to your campus community, it is important to remember that students, faculty, staff, and community members may experience or perpetrate violence.

The questions in this assessment are organized around the six pillars of the Culture of Respect Engagement Blueprint (CORE Blueprint):

- 1. Survivor support with options on reporting;
- 2. Clear policies on misconduct, investigations, adjudications, and sanctions;
- 3. Multitiered education for the entire campus;
- 4. Public disclosure of statistics:
- 5. Schoolwide mobilization with student groups and leaders; and
- 6. Ongoing self-assessment.

A Note on Laws and Guidance

The CORE Evaluation covers recommended practices for addressing campus sexual violence, based on research, expert guidance, and promising practices. It is grounded in the legal, political, and social framework specific to institutions of higher education in the United States. For respondents outside the U.S., this survey will still be helpful in examining and learning about the range of practices currently being implemented at U.S. institutions. Respondents from outside the U.S. should try to answer each item thinking through the spirit of the question while recognizing that U.S.-specific guidance and nomenclature (e.g., "Title IX coordinator/officer") may not specifically apply to their institution.

Although the survey asks about areas that intersect with U.S. federal and state law, this instrument does not exhaustively examine all state and federal laws and should not replace other efforts to confirm state or federal compliance. Additionally, this edition of the survey was updated in March 2019, after the Department of Education issued interim Title IX guidance in September 2017 and its notice of proposed rulemaking for a new rule on Title IX and sexual violence in November 2018. It should be noted that the proposed rule introduced in November 2018 does not constitute federal guidance; as the title suggests, it is a proposal on which the public was asked to comment and does not change existing guidance from the Department. Once a new rule is finalized, institutions of higher education should consult the Federal Register and the Department of Education to ensure they are meeting any new standards. Additionally, institutions in the United States should keep in mind that there are a constellation of state laws related to sexual violence on campus. Programs and policies related to these laws may or may not be covered in this assessment.

What You Will Need

This survey will ask about many aspects of your institution's efforts to prevent and respond to sexual violence. To be best prepared to answer these questions, we recommend you have these resources at your disposal:

- · A copy of your institution's
 - policies related to sexual misconduct
 - student handbook (or code of conduct)
 - employee handbook or human resources portal
 - last Annual Security Report
- · Data collected about sexual violence on your campus, including
 - any campus climate survey results
 - assessment results from a third party
 - · results of any related audit
- An electronic device with Internet access, to assess the accessibility of information about campus programs and services on your institution's website
- Training curricula used for any sexual violence training for employees
- An overview of primary prevention and awareness programming offered to students
- Any written investigations, adjudications, and sanctions protocols
- Any active Memorandum of Understanding (MOUs) with local organizations that provide care and support to survivors of sexual violence
- An overview of services available to students at the campus health center and in the local community
- An overview of any services provided to responding parties in conduct investigations
- An overview of relevant email communications to campus stakeholders (e.g., updates to sexual violence policies, notices of upcoming events, alerts about changes to policy, etc.)

For a downloadable version of this list, please follow the link at the bottom of this page.

Who You Will Need

To most accurately respond to this self-assessment, you will want to involve stakeholders from across campus. This can mean a Campus Leadership Team, sexual assault task force, or other multi-stakeholder body who is well-versed in campus efforts to prevent and respond to sexual violence. At a minimum we recommend representatives from:

- Title IX office
- · Health promotion/prevention office
- Administration
- Faculty
- Student body, including: students from various colleges/programs within your institution; those who have been active in antiviolence work on campus; student government leaders; survivors; athletes; representatives from Greek Life (if applicable); and graduate students (if applicable)

Ideally, your Campus Leadership Team will also include representatives from:

- Alumni
- Athletics
- · Board of Directors
- · Campus health services
- Campus security/police
- Disability services
- · Diversity and inclusion office
- General counsel
- Greek Life
- Human Resources
- Local law enforcement
- Local agencies such as Rape Crisis Centers, hospitals, or other key service providers
- Programs offices and community-specific departments (e.g., women's center, LGBTQIA+, multicultural student affairs, international students office, Black student union, etc.)
- · Religious Life
- · Residential Life
- Student conduct (or similar office)
- Support staff (e.g., custodians, dining services, etc.)
- Survivor advocacy

For a downloadable version of this list, please follow the link below.

Q1. This assessment will ask about a variety of policies at your institution. Indicate where each set of policies can be found. You may select multiple options if the information is located in more than one place.

Q3. For any policies that are found in more than one place, to what extent are the policies consistent across these different sources?

Not at all consistent-	-there are	discrepancies a	and/or	contradictions	apparent

Definitely consistent

Note: The rest of this assessment will ask about whether certain practices or programs are codified into institutional policies. Any of the previously mentioned types of policies should be referenced. In any policy review subsequent to administering the CORE Evaluation, Culture of Respect recommends considering if

Somewhat consistent—there is a lack of clarity and/or some minor discrepancies each policy statement is found in the right place, and ensuring policies and definitions are consistent across these documents.

Pillar 1: Survivor Support

This section will ask about your institution's efforts to support survivors of sexual violence. It is important to keep in mind that students may experience violence before they enroll at your institution, while physically present on your campus, or off campus premises during their enrollment. Additionally, faculty and staff may also be survivors of violence, in or outside the context of their work on campus. This section will ask about the institution's efforts to:

- Encourage and facilitate reporting of sexual violence;
- Respond to reports;
- Provide advocacy, mental health, and medical services;
- Offer supportive measures to support survivors' health and academic success; and
- Fulfill obligations under federal law, including Title IX and the Clery Act.

Note: Services and supportive measures to support responding parties in Title IX cases will be covered in the next section Pillar 2: Clear Policies on Misconduct, Investigation, Adjudication & Sanctions.

Q4. Please rate each of the following policy components, as present in any relevant institutional policies.

Q101. What additional information or details do you think are important to share regarding your institution's primary prevention and awareness programming?

Q83 - While there is no informal resolution process for TIX matters, SLU does have an informal process for non-TIX matters. Q83 - Restorative Justice is not used to resolve TIX matters, however, Restorative Justice methods are used to resolve other matters on campus. Q84 - A method for providing training to undergraduate teaching and research assistants is in development and will be deployed August 2021. Q79 - Additional non-mandatory training opportunities are available to TIX staff throughout the entire year.

Pillar 4: Public Disclosure of Campus Violence Statistics

This section focuses on your institution's efforts to disclose violence statistics to the campus community and the public. It will cover:

- Communication with key stakeholders;
- · Data collection about the institution's response and prevention efforts;
- Required disclosures via the Clery Act; and
- Voluntary disclosure of other sexual violence data.

Note: Sharing outcomes of Title IX proceedings with stakeholders can instill confidence that the institution has a standard process for resolving cases of misconduct and takes the issue seriously. Additionally, collecting demographic data on sexual violence prevalence as well as participation in institutional misconduct proceedings can help your institution identify and potentially respond to any disparities in how students are experiencing violence and/or accessing services.

Q102. Indicate which of the following is true about your institution's data collection procedures for each of the following:

Tip: Hover over—do not click—the underlined blue text to see examples and/or additional information.

	Data is not collected	Data is collected, but not publicized	Data is collected and publicized
Incidents of sexual violence that occur on Clery geography	0		•
Incidents of sexual violence that occur outside Clery geography	0	•

Q104. Thinking about how your institution collects, publicizes, and shares data on the prevalence and reporting of sexual violence, please assess the level to which data is collected and publicized at your institution, for each student demographic/identity listed below:

Note: It is important to keep in mind that for some campuses, it may not be appropriate to publicize demographic information because it may jeopardize student confidentiality.
