Course Description and Objectives

This course provides students with conceptual tools for understanding international politics. Three sections comprise the course: (1) where we are today, (2) international security and political economy, and (3) global issues in the 21st century. In the first section, we discuss the nature and theories of international relations. Second, we learn security and economic aspects of global politics, institutions, and norms. Finally, we discuss current political issues and apply theories we learned to some of the most important problems we face today.

Required Texts:
- Supplementary articles and book chapters are placed on e-reserve at the library.

Course requirements and grading:

Mid-term exam: 30% of final grade
The midterm exam will be given in class on October 10. The exam will cover lecture content and reading materials assigned through that date. A make-up exam will be given only if you provide the instructor, within 24 hours of your absence, with evidence of family and medical emergency (notes from doctor, copy of flight tickets, etc.) or university-sponsored activities that force your absence. Make-up exams will not be given for any other reasons.

Final exam: 40% of final grade
The final exam will be given during the assigned final exam period (Thursday, December 12, 12:00-13:50) in the classroom. A make-up exam will be given only if you provide the instructor, within 24 hours of your absence, with evidence of family and medical emergency (notes from doctor, copy of flight tickets, etc.) or university-sponsored activities that force your absence. Make-up exams will not be given for any other reasons.

Important note for students taking this class for honors credit

In addition, students taking this course for honors credit are required to write a 3,600-4,500 word research paper and orally present it to the class. Such students must receive the professor’s written or email approval on the paper topic by 1pm, September 12, Thursday, and start working on the paper immediately afterwards. The paper is due 11am, December 5, Thursday. Late papers will not be accepted and will automatically receive a score of zero. Honors students must orally present the paper to the class on December 5. The paper and presentation will be graded on the basis of quality, organization, and clarity. For honors students, distribution of final grade is as follows: 20% from midterm exam, 30% from final exam, 20% from research paper, 10% from oral presentation, and 20% from pop quizzes).
Pop quizzes: 30% of final grade

There will be a number of pop quizzes throughout the semester. There will be no make-up quiz or opportunity to make up for a missed quiz. A missed quiz will be excused only if you provide the instructor, within 24 hours of your absence, with evidence of family and medical emergency (notes from your doctor, copy of flight tickets, etc.) or university-sponsored activities that forced your absence.

Final letter grades will be assigned that correspond to the following numeric scale:

Student success:

In recognition that people learn in a variety of ways and that learning is influenced by multiple factors (e.g., prior experience, study skills, learning disability), resources to support student success are available on campus. Students who think they might benefit from these resources can find out more about course-level support (e.g., faculty member, departmental resources, etc.) by asking your course instructor and University-level support (e.g., tutoring/writing services, Disability Services) by visiting the Student Success Center (BSC 331) or by going to www.slu.edu/success.

Students who believe that, due to a disability, they could benefit from academic accommodations are encouraged to contact Disability Services at 314-977-8885 or visit the Student Success Center. Confidentiality will be observed in all inquiries. Course instructors support student accommodation requests when an approved letter from Disability Services has been received and when students discuss these accommodations with the instructor after receipt of the approved letter.

Academic integrity:

The University is a community of learning, whose effectiveness requires an environment of mutual trust and integrity. Academic integrity is violated by any dishonesty such as soliciting, receiving, or providing any unauthorized assistance in the completion of work submitted toward academic credit. While not all forms of academic dishonesty can be listed here, examples include copying from another student, copying from a book or class notes during a closed book exam, submitting materials authored by or revised by another person as the student’s own work, copying a passage or text directly from a published source without appropriately citing or recognizing that source, taking a test or doing an assignment or other work for another student, securing or supplying in advance a copy of an examination or quiz without the knowledge or consent of the instructor, sharing or receiving the questions from an on-line quiz with another student, taking an on-line quiz with the help of another student, and colluding with another student or students to engage in academic dishonesty.

All clear violations of academic integrity will be met with appropriate sanctions. In this course, academic dishonesty on an assignment will result in an automatic grade of 0 for that assignment and a report of academic dishonesty will be sent to the Academic Honesty Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences. In the case of Class B violations, the Academic Honesty Committee may impose a larger sanction including, but not limited to, assigning a failing grade in the course, disciplinary probation, suspension, and dismissal from the University.
Students should refer to the following SLU website for more information about Class A and B violations and the procedures following a report of academic dishonesty: https://www.slu.edu/arts-and-sciences/student-resources/academic-honesty.php.
