Course Credits: 3

Course Description:

2016 was a pivotal presidential election year and will go down among the most debated and controversial elections in all of American history. This year's midterm elections will be equally significant in shaping the country's future. This course will help you make sense about what is happening in the United States during this incredibly volatile period in our history and will help you understand American political institutions and the political system. Knowledge of the dynamics of and interactions among political institutions, including the presidency, congress, the judiciary, public opinion, the media, and political parties is absolutely essential to gain a full comprehension of what all is at stake not only for the United States but the rest of the world.

We will focus on the institutional rules and structures and human behaviors shaping government, the operation of elections, the development of parties and interest groups, social movements, public opinion, as well as the functioning of Congress, the presidency, and the courts. We begin with an historic overview of the topics that will examine how the current system has evolved because to understand the way government in the U.S. works today we have to trace its development over the last 230 years. The foundation of the U.S. political system and the rules and norms evolving over several centuries continue to exert a tremendous influence on how the government performs, what policies it produces, and how its citizens engage with it. This course fulfills the social science core requirement (see below).

Format and Assignments:

Because the course covers substantial material in a concentrated time period, each class will be broken into segments that involve different kinds of learning activities: lectures, in-class and Blackboard discussions, etc. We will often refer to current events in American politics. Students are encouraged to follow American current events. We will occasionally use articles from different news venues in class. Students should be current with reading assignments to participate regularly in class discussions.

Grading:

Class Attendance.....	10%
Blackboard Assignments (see below).....	30%
Midterm Exam (Oct. 17).....	30%
Final Exam (Dec. 17 noon—1:50 pm).....	30%

All students are required to fill out the online course evaluation at the end of the semester.

BLACKBOARD ASSIGNMENTS:

Online Journals:

The online journal is where you will record your reflections on the class readings and discussions. In this assignment, I will be the only other person who will read the journal. The goal of this assignment is for you to develop the important habit of reflecting on your work.

In each lesson, I will provide you with a prompt from either the readings, class discussions, or the news. But the idea is the same from week to week: you reflect on the material in a way that indicates to me that you are thinking about your learning and development.

Just as the stories in the book describe ordinary people who have struggled and, in some cases, triumphed in the American political system, the journal will allow you to tell your story and to share your experiences.

New journal entry due by Friday 5 pm every week of class, except the first week and finals week.

Weekly Class Discussion Board:

Each week you will do a brief response to a question based on the readings for that week. Your response will be public so that all the other students will be able to read it. As part of this assignment, you will have to reply to the postings of 2 other students in the class. My TA, Justin Lorenz, will keep track of all students' postings on the discussion board and the online journal.

Discussion board posting and replies due by Friday 5 pm every week of class, except the first week and finals week.

Honor Code

Students are expected to be honest in their academic work. The University reserves the right to penalize any student whose academic conduct at any time is, in its judgment, detrimental to the University. Such conduct shall include cases of plagiarism, collusion, cheating, giving or receiving or offering or soliciting information in examinations, or the use of previously prepared material in examinations or quizzes. Violations should be reported to me and will be investigated and adjudicated according to the Policy on Academic Honesty of the College of Arts and Sciences. If the charges are found to be true, the student may be liable for academic or disciplinary probation, suspension, or expulsion from the University. Please refer to the university policy at <http://www.slu.edu/x12657.xml>.

Expectations and Procedures

Technology

Put everything on mute. You do not need to use your laptop for this course. Please take notes the old fashioned way. This will dissuade the trend of college students to browse the web, check email, and frequent social networking sites during lecture. I will email all lecture powerpoints after the daily lecture.

Communication

I will post grades, send class emails, etc. through the SLU Banner system. Be sure that you can access the email address listed. I will only send email out to your SLU e-mail accounts listed on the course roster in Banner. I will not keep track of any other email addresses you may use.

Disabilities

In recognition that people learn in a variety of ways and that learning is influenced by multiple factors (e.g., prior experience, study skills, learning disability), resources to support student success are available on campus. Students who think they might benefit from these resources can find out more about: _Course-level support (e.g., faculty member, departmental resources, etc.) by asking your course instructor.

_ University-level support (e.g., tutoring/writing services, Disability Services) by going to www.slu.edu/success.

Students who believe that, due to a disability, they could benefit from academic accommodations are encouraged to contact Disability Services at the Student Success Center.

Confidentiality

Confidentiality will be observed in all inquiries. Course instructors support student accommodation requests when an approved letter from Disability Services has been received and when students discuss these accommodations with the instructor after receipt of the approved letter.

University Writing Services

I encourage you to take advantage of University Writing Services; getting feedback benefits all writers! Trained writing consultants can help with any writing, multimedia project, or oral presentation. During one-on-one consultations, you can work on everything from brainstorming and developing ideas to crafting strong sentences and documenting sources. These services do fill up, so please make an appointment! Also, bring your assignment description, and a few goals, to the consultation! For more information, or to make an appointment, visit www.slu.edu/writingservices.xml or call 977-3484.

Social Science core requirement

Student Outcomes: Students will acquire conceptual tools and methodologies to analyze and understand their social world. With these tools, they will be able to act in their world more effectively and become forces for positive change. They will gain a better understanding of human diversity. Students will be able to think and write critically about human behavior and community. They will become aware of the various methodological approaches used by social scientists.
