WELCOME

Welcome to the Department of Theological Studies at Saint Louis University!

Our Department is committed to excellence in research, teaching, and service. Together, we work toward these goals by building strong mentoring relationships, establishing dynamic and innovative classroom experiences, and disseminating research through conferences, workshops, exhibits, and publications.

Our graduates have gone on to a wide range of careers in academia, educational administration, museums, libraries, archives, and non-profit agencies. Our Department is committed to the professional preparation of every graduate student.

Our graduate students enter our programs with a variety of research interests, skills, ecclesial backgrounds, and professional histories. This is a true strength of our interdisciplinary community. At the same time, graduate students move together as a cohort through a rigorous curriculum designed to ground their efforts in a common experience and frame of reference.

Inside you will find details about our master's and doctoral degrees, as well as information about resources to aid you in timely progress to your degree.

Again, welcome to the Department. We look forward to our work together in the years to come.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Peter Martens". The signature is fluid and cursive, with "Peter" on top and "Martens" below it, slightly overlapping.

Peter W. Martens
Chair, Department of Theological Studies
Associate Professor of Early Christianity

NOTE TO THE STUDENT

Please note that students are responsible for the contents of this Handbook. Please also note that DTS amends this Handbook annually. Students should consult the most current edition of the Handbook for questions about the graduate programs. Should questions arise that are not clarified by this Handbook, students are advised to consult the website of the Office of Graduate Education (<http://www.slu.edu/graduate-education>). A variety of policies, procedures and forms that pertain to graduate education will be found there under the heading “Current Students.” The most recent copy of the Graduate Education Catalog is also located here. In most cases, the Catalog will address outstanding questions.

Should this Handbook or the Graduate Education Catalog not address a particular programmatic issue, students are advised to direct their questions to their faculty mentors first or, if the mentor is unable to assist the student, secondarily to the Coordinator of Graduate Studies (“CGS”):

MASTER OF THEOLOGICAL STUDIES

I. Program Overview

The Master of Theological Studies (“MTS”) program in the Department of Theological Studies is geared towards students who want to pursue focused scholarship, prepare for future doctoral work, or simply exercise their intellectual curiosity. This program offers an ideal first degree in Theology, orienting students to the major fields of theological study, including biblical studies, the history of Christianity, theological ethics and constructive theology.

Students in the MTS program find academic enrichment not only through coursework in our Department, but also by participating in the variety of lectures and workshops that are sponsored by our Department and the wider scholarly community. Students are also encouraged to participate in an array of pastoral and spiritual formation programs, shared worship, and university-wide social events.

The Department typically admits around 5 students each year to the MTS program. We welcome all qualified applicants and offer competitive funding for our top applicants.

II. Admission

Interested students should apply at <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-admission-home> by January 1.

Application requirements include: transcript(s), three letters of recommendation, GRE scores, resume, and a personal statement indicating academic and professional goals.

Successful applicants have a strong background in the humanities and/or social sciences. A theology degree is not a prerequisite for admission.

We welcome campus visits from those who are considering applying to the MTS program. Interested students should contact Ms. Heather Venable, Administrative Assistant for the program, to arrange a convenient time to visit classes and to meet with the CGS, faculty in their area of interest, and current students in the program.

III. Financial Aid

A. Tuition Scholarship

Full-time students are eligible for tuition scholarships. Occasionally, awards are given to part-time students as well. Tuition scholarship may be applied only to courses required for the degree. Although the Department attempts to meet the needs of all students, demands always exceed the available resources. Students are to investigate other sources of funding. The Office of Research Services at 314-977-2241 and the Office of Financial Aid at 314-977-2350 are two excellent services located on campus. Tuition scholarships are granted only to students in good academic standing and to those who have no delinquent “Incompletes” in their record.

B. Research Assistantships

Students applying to the MTS program will be considered for a Research Assistantship. A small number of half or quarter assistantships are available. A half assistantship is $9,000 and a quarter is $4,500. In exchange for the stipend, students work as research assistants for the faculty to whom they are assigned. Students on half-assistantships provide 10 hours of work per week to faculty. Students on quarter-assistantships provide 5 hours of work per week. RAs typically assist faculty with research and, from time to time, help with teaching. Stipends may be used to pay tuition and are often combined with tuition scholarship. With permission from the Dean of the Graduate School, students with half- or quarter- assistantships may have other employment outside the university.

IV. Requirements of the Program

A. General Requirements

For general information about regulations concerning all graduate programs at Saint Louis University, please consult the section “Academic Policies and Procedures” in the Graduate Education Catalog (available at <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-education/current-students>).

B. Faculty Supervision

Upon entering the MTS program, each student is assigned a faculty mentor. Mentors are responsible for understanding the MTS program, fielding student questions about the program, advising students about coursework, deadlines, and procedures, facilitating exit interviews, and preparing students for the job market. Students are expected to meet with their mentors at least once each semester, typically at the time of registration, to define their needs and to design a course of study which will best prepare them for their future. Although mentors serve in an advisory capacity to students, students themselves are ultimately responsible for fulfilling the requirements of the degree program and following appropriate procedures.

C. Coursework

Students take 36 credit hours broadly distributed across the theological curriculum: 6 credit hours of biblical studies (Introduction to OT and Introduction to NT); 6 credit hours of Christian history (Christian Tradition I and Christian Tradition II); 6 credit hours of theological ethics or constructive theology (Christian Theology Introduction and one elective); 6 credit hours of language; and 12 elective hours, of which 3 are in a non-Christian religion.¹ The typical sequence of courses is as follows:

Fall 1		Spring 1
6/5	Christian Theology (“CT”) Introduction		Elective
5/4	Christian Tradition I	5/4	Christian Tradition II
	Language I or Elective		Language II or Elective

¹ Up to 6 elective credit hours can be taken in other departments at SLU or with tuition remission from another institution in the area (i.e., Washington University). Students may also take up to 6 credit hours at the 4000-level.

Fall 2		Spring 2
5	Introduction to OT	5	Introduction to NT
	Elective	6/5	Elective
	World Religion Elective	5	Research Paper or Elective

D. Research Paper

Students in the MTS program have the option of writing a 30-40 page research paper. Students who wish to pursue this option must register for “Research Topics” (Theo 5970, 3 credit hours) and select a faculty mentor and a second reader for the paper in the spring of their second year. The research paper must make an original argument on a subject of significance to the student’s chosen area of specialization and must be anchored in careful and critical analysis of primary and secondary sources. Students are expected to consult regularly with their mentor in crafting a paper topic and in the process of researching and writing the paper. Students must submit the final paper to their mentor and second reader by May 1 of their second year. The mentor and second reader then evaluate the paper according to the Research Paper rubric (see Appendix A).

E. Language

Students in the MTS program must demonstrate competency in at least one foreign language. Students demonstrate competency by passing the relevant language competency exam within their first year in the program. The Department sets examination dates in October and March. Students must register for the examination they wish to take with the departmental administrative assistant at least 2 weeks prior to the scheduled date. The language examination consists of 400-500 words of original text in a modern language or 300-400 words of original text in an ancient language, which students must translate into clear English during a two-hour period with the aid of a print dictionary. Faculty both select the original text and evaluate the examinations according to the Language Competency Examination Rubric (see Appendix B).

V. Annual Reviews

The Graduate Studies Committee conducts annual reviews of all graduate students each spring. Students must submit to the CGS a signed, hard copy of their completed portion of the Annual Review form by March 15 of each year of study. For the MTS/MARE Annual Review form, see Appendix C.

VI. Graduation Procedures

In the spring semester of the second year of study or the equivalent, students will prepare to graduate following the procedures of the Office of Graduate Education. See Non-thesis Masters Final Degree Requirements. All graduating students must also schedule an exit interview with their mentors. For the exit interview, see Appendix D.

MASTER OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

I. Program Overview

The Master of Religious Education (“MARE”) program is geared towards students who want to earn a degree that will prepare them to work in religious or other non-profit organizations, social justice agencies, or educational or community-based organizations.

The MARE program offers students an introduction to the major fields of theological study, including biblical studies, the history of Christianity, theological ethics and constructive theology. At the same time, by means of electives in the School of Education, the internship, and comprehensive exams, this program provides students with the academic background, skills, and practical experience to prepare them for future professional work in religious education and administration.

The Department typically admits up to 5 students each year to the MARE program. We welcome all qualified applicants and offer a range of financial aid to help cover the cost of tuition.

II. Admission

Interested students should apply at <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-admission-home> by January 1.

Application requirements include: transcript(s), three letters of recommendation, GRE scores, resume, and a personal statement indicating academic and professional goals.

Successful applicants have a strong background in the humanities and/or social sciences. A theology degree is not a prerequisite for admission.

We welcome campus visits from those who are considering applying to the MARE program. Interested students should contact Ms. Heather Venable, Administrative Assistant for the program, to arrange a convenient time to visit classes and to meet with the CGS, faculty in their area of interest, and current students in the program.

III. Financial Aid

A. Tuition Scholarship

Full-time students are eligible for tuition scholarships. Occasionally, awards are given to part-time students as well. Tuition scholarship may be applied only to courses required for the degree. Although the Department attempts to meet the needs of all students, demands always exceed the available resources. Students are to investigate other sources of funding. The Office of Research Services at 314-977-2241 and the Office of Financial Aid at 314-977-2350 are two excellent services located on campus. Tuition scholarships are granted only to students in good academic standing and to those who have no delinquent “Incompletes” in their record.

B. Employees of the Archdiocese of Saint Louis

Saint Louis University and the Catholic Education Office of the Archdiocese of Saint Louis sponsor a special program for religious educators working in the Archdiocese of Saint Louis, including primary or secondary school religion teachers and directors or coordinators of parish religious education programs. MARE students are eligible for a tuition discount up to 60% through this program.

C. Miscellaneous

In addition to the above, the Department has available to it limited funds to offset the cost of tuition and to cover other student initiatives. These funding opportunities are routinely communicated to students at the end of each spring semester.

IV. Requirements of the Program

A. General Requirements

For general information about regulations concerning all graduate programs at Saint Louis University, please consult the section “Academic Policies and Procedures” in the Graduate Education Catalog (available at <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-education/current-students>).

B. Part-Time Students

Although students normally complete the Religious Education track in four semesters, it is possible to complete the requirements for the degree on a part-time basis. The maximum length of time for the completion of the MARE degree is ten semesters from the time of matriculation.

C. Faculty Supervision

Upon entering the MARE program, each student is assigned a faculty mentor. Mentors are responsible for understanding the MARE program, fielding student questions about the program, advising students about coursework, deadlines, and procedures, facilitating exit interviews, and preparing students for the job market. Students are expected to meet with their mentors at least once each semester, typically at the time of registration, to define their needs and to design a course of study which will best prepare them for their future. Although mentors serve in an advisory capacity to students, students themselves are ultimately responsible for fulfilling the requirements of the degree program and following appropriate procedures.

D. Coursework

Students take 33 credit hours broadly distributed across the theological curriculum, as well as courses geared toward the specific theological and pedagogical tasks of a religious educator. Students are encouraged to take electives in the School of Education. Recommended courses in the School of Education include Methods of Catechesis, Foundations of Catholic Educational Administration, and Special Dimensions of Catholic Education. As part of their coursework, students in this program must complete six credit hours of field internship work. In addition to coursework, degree requirements include a 20-25 page synthesis paper and comprehensive exams. The typical sequence of courses is as follows:

Fall 1		Spring 1
6/5	CT Introduction	5	Education Elective
5/4	Christian Tradition I	5/4	Christian Tradition II
5	Education Elective	5	CT Seminar
		5	Internship Preparation

Fall 2		Spring 2
5	Introduction to OT	5	Introduction to NT
5	World Religion Elective	5	Special Study for Exam
5	Internship	5	Internship

E. Internship

MARE students must take 6 credit hours of THEO 5910 (Internship in Religious Education) in the fall and spring semesters of the second year of study, spending a minimum of 200 hours working as interns in the field of religious education at two different locations.

In preparation for the internship, students must register for THEO 5911 (Internship Preparation) in the spring semester of the first year of study. Students enrolled in THEO 5911 begin the process of locating internships in the field of religious education for the fall and spring semesters of the second year of study, following the Pre-Internship Checklist. Adhering to the Procedure and Information for Obtaining an Internship and Observation Visits guide, students must identify and obtain at least two internships at different locations or in different areas of the field of religious education. In addition, students must follow the internship protocol established by the College of Arts & Sciences. According to this protocol, students must complete the Learning Contract form, the Internship Risk Acknowledgment and Release form, and the Professional Policy and Conduct Agreement (available at <http://www.slu.edu/arts-and-sciences/student-resources/policies-procedures.php>). Once these forms have been submitted to the College, the Registrar will enroll the student in the Internship course. Please note that students can no longer register for the Internship directly.

During the course of the internship in the second year of study, students must keep weekly logs of their teaching experiences for approval by the cooperating mentor in the field and the CGS. At the conclusion of the internship, students will be evaluated by the cooperating mentor in the field according to the Internship Evaluation Rubric provided by DTS (see Appendix E).

Additionally, at the end of the spring semester of the second year of study, students must write a 20-25 page synthesis paper proposing a theologically-informed pedagogy. This paper should demonstrate critical reflection on the intersection of and dialectic between students' theological education and internship experiences in the field of religious education. The synthesis paper will be evaluated according to the Synthesis Paper Rubric (see Appendix F).

F. Comprehensive Exams

MARE students must pass a comprehensive examination in the spring semester of the second year of study. The objective of the comprehensive exam is to ensure that graduating students have a strong knowledge of foundational texts in selected areas of theological study.

The comprehensive exam consists of both a written portion and an oral portion. The written portion consists of two questions from the area of religious education and two additional questions, each from different areas of concentration (scripture, constructive theology, ethics, and history).² DTS maintains a pool of exam questions, each of which has been developed on the basis of standard reading lists particular to the various areas of concentration (see Appendix G).

In the fall semester of year 2, students select three faculty members to serve as the exam committee. In the spring semester of year 2, students register for THEO 5950 (Special Study for Exam) and schedule both the written and oral portions of the exam with the departmental administrative assistant in consultation with the committee.

Exam questions will be selected by the committee and collected, approved, and submitted by the committee chair to the departmental administrative assistant at least 3 days prior to the exam. Students have five hours to complete the written portion of the exam, typically allotting three hours to respond to the two questions from the area of religious education and one hour each to respond to the questions from other areas of concentration. The oral portion of the exam lasts one hour and consists of questions directed to the students by the exam committee. Both the written and oral portions of the exam are evaluated according to DTS rubrics (see Appendices H and I). The committee chair communicates the results of the written and oral portions of the exam to students and CGS, and submits the completed rubrics to the departmental administrative assistant.

Students pass both the written and oral portions of the exam if they receive passing evaluations from a majority of Committee members. If the student fails either portion of the exam, the student may retake the exam only once either in whole or in part upon recommendation of the exam committee. Re-takes must be completed within six months of the original exam date.

V. Annual Reviews

The Graduate Studies Committee conducts annual reviews of all graduate students each spring. Students must submit to the CGS a signed, hard copy of their completed portion of the Annual Review form by March 15 of each year of study. For the MTS/MARE Annual Review Form, see Appendix C.

VI. Graduation Procedures

In the spring semester of the second year of study or the equivalent, students will prepare to graduate following the procedures of the Office of Graduate Education. See Non-thesis Masters Final Degree Requirements. All graduating students must also schedule an exit interview with their mentors. For the exit interview, see Appendix D.

² Students choosing Historical Theology as one of their areas of concentration will opt to focus in either the early, medieval, or modern period.

PH.D. IN THEOLOGICAL STUDIES

I. Program Overview

For over forty years, the Ph.D. program in the Department of Theological Studies has trained scholars who have made a lasting impact through their research and teaching. Our doctoral program offers two concentrations that reflect areas of research excellence and depth among our faculty: Christianity in Antiquity and Christian Theology.

The pursuit of a doctorate is an intensive apprenticeship into research and teaching. Students will make an original contribution based on rigorous and creative work. Regardless of their concentration, students are expected to explore a wide range of methodological approaches and cultivate a range of skills vital for an ongoing career in research. The Department works collaboratively with faculty in other departments and encourages students to use the rich resources available at Saint Louis University, including the Pius XII Memorial Library, the Vatican Film Library, the Center for Digital Humanities, and the Jesuit Archives.

Alongside equipping students to specialize within their chosen concentrations, the Department mentors students in the craft of teaching through a variety of opportunities and experiences, including individualized supervision, workshops, and diverse undergraduate teaching assignments. Students are also encouraged to participate in the programs offered by the Reinert Center for Transformative Teaching and Learning.

The Department typically admits four doctoral students per year, two in each of its concentrations. We welcome all qualified applicants and offer competitive funding for four years of the program to each of our admitted students, provided students continue to meet expectations. In the fifth year, students may be awarded Mentored Teaching Assistantships.

The Department also participates in the Joint Ph.D. in Theology and Health Care Ethics. Interested students should contact the Center for Health Care Ethics.

II. Concentrations of Study

A. Christianity in Antiquity (CA)

The focal point of this concentration is early Christianity, from its origins through the rise of Islam. This concentration deliberately bridges long-standing disciplinary boundaries between New Testament, patristics, and early medieval Christianity, situating Christianity within the Greco-Roman world and the wider religious cultures of the Mediterranean. Students in this area of concentration acquire expertise in Second Temple and Rabbinic Judaism, as well as the early Islamic period. Students are expected to take courses from faculty with relevant expertise outside the Department and university.

B. Christian Theology (CT)

The focal point of this concentration is Christian theology, broadly conceived. This concentration trains students to become Christian theologians by providing students with a strong background in the history of Christianity as well the various subfields of Christian theology. Students in this area of concentration craft an integrated plan of study in one of several major theological disciplines by means of coursework and individualized exams. Students will have the opportunity to work with faculty in various interrelated disciplinary fields within and outside DTS: Biblical studies, the history of Christianity, theological ethics, liturgical studies, and constructive, philosophical and comparative theology.

III. Admission

A. Prerequisites

Students seeking admission to the Ph.D. program will have earned a Master's degree in theology, religious studies, classics, ancient history, or some other closely-related field.

Christianity in Antiquity

Students preparing for admission to this concentration will have studied more than one year of ancient Greek and at least one year of Latin or Syriac, as well as have acquired reading skills in French or German before enrolling in the program. Prospective students are also expected to have completed significant course work in subjects related to the concentration (e.g., New Testament studies, ancient philosophy, early Christian theology).

Christian Theology

Students preparing for admission to this concentration will have acquired reading skills in reading skills in French, German, or another one of their major research languages. Prospective students are also expected to have completed significant course work in subjects related to the concentration (e.g. the history of Christianity, moral theology, constructive theology).

B. Application Procedures

Interested students should apply at <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-admission-home> by January 1.

Application requirements include: transcript(s), three letters of recommendation, GRE scores, resume, professional goal statement, and three Personal Potential Index evaluations (recommended).

C. Final Decisions

In early spring, the Graduate Studies Committee will conduct an initial screening of all applicants. A list of CA and CT finalists will be determined after a consultation with faculty in those respective fields. After these applicants have been interviewed (e.g., in person or by Skype), the Graduate Studies Committee will finalize a list of admitted students in each concentration.

IV. Requirements of the Program

A. General Requirements

Continuous Registration

From the first semester of coursework until the final semester of graduation, students must be continuously registered. Students on 11-month assistantships must also register for the Summer Session, per the policies of the Office of Graduate Education. Registration is the responsibility of the student.

Residency

Students are expected to remain in residence throughout the entirety of their program unless they have received a fellowship that requires a change in residency or found an academic job prior to completion of degree. All other exceptions must be approved by the Director of Graduate Studies and Department Chair.

Professional Development

Students are expected to remain visible members of the scholarly community throughout their time in the program, e.g., participating in seminars after their formal period of coursework and attending departmentally-sponsored lectures. Additionally, they are expected to apply for internal and external funding, become members of professional organizations, present their research at professional conferences, and acquire specialized training in teaching.

Regulations for Graduate Study

For general information about regulations concerning all graduate programs at Saint Louis University, please see the section “Academic Policies and Procedures” in the Graduate Education Catalog (available at <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-education/current-students>).

B. Faculty Supervision

Upon entering the PhD program, each student is assigned a faculty mentor whose academic interests best align with those of the student (subject to faculty availability). Mentors are responsible for understanding the PhD program, fielding student questions about the program, advising students about coursework, deadlines, and procedures, facilitating exit interviews, and preparing students for the job market. Students are expected to meet regularly with their mentors early in their academic programs to define their needs and to design a course of study which will best prepare them for their research and teaching. Upon defending the prospectus, the student’s dissertation director becomes her or his mentor. The director oversees the progress of doctoral students toward the timely completion of their degree. Although mentors serve in an advisory capacity to students, students themselves are ultimately responsible for fulfilling the requirements of the degree program and following appropriate procedures.

C. Coursework

Students register for all courses and ensure their continuous registration in the program through graduation.

Years 1-2

Students are required to complete 36 hours of coursework in the first two years of the program. Up to 6 hours can be taken outside of the Department or with tuition remission from another institution in the area (such as Washington University). The typical sequence of coursework in the first two years of each of the concentrations is outlined below:

CHRISTIANITY IN ANTIQUITY (CA)
Fall 1		Spring 1
6/5	CA Survey	6/5	CA Seminar
6/5	CA Seminar	6/5	Ancient Language
6/5	Ancient Language	6/5	Theories and Methods

Fall 2				Spring 2
6/5	CA Seminar	6/5	CA Seminar
6/5	Ancient Language	6/5	Ancient Language
	Elective			Elective

CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY (CT)
Fall 1		Spring 1
6/5	CT Introduction	6/5	CT Seminar
6/5	CT Seminar	6/5	CT Seminar
	Elective or Christian Tradition I		Theories and Methods

Fall 2				Spring 2
6/5	CT Seminar	6/5	CT Seminar
6/5	Elective	6/5	Elective
	Elective			Elective or CT II

Year 3

In their third year students register for “Prospectus” (Theo 6210, 3 credit hours) and “Dissertation Research” (Theo 6990, 6 credit hours) in both the fall and spring semesters under their dissertation director.

Years 4 and beyond

In years four and beyond, through graduation, students register each semester for “Dissertation Research” (Theo 6990, 0 credit hours) under their dissertation director.

D. Language Requirements

Students concentrating in Christianity in Antiquity must acquire competency in two of the following ancient languages: Greek, Latin, and Syriac. CA students must also acquire competency in French and German, and any other languages relevant to their research interests. Students concentrating in Christian Theology must acquire competency in French and German, and any other languages relevant to their research interests.

As noted above, students admitted to the CA concentration enter the program with introductory skills in two of the following languages: Greek, Latin, and Syriac. Ideally they should also have acquired reading skills in French or German prior to enrolling. Students admitted to the CT concentration enter the program with reading skills in French, German, or another one of their major research languages. Students in the CA concentration strengthen their skills in Greek, Latin, and Syriac by taking language courses during the first and second years of study. Students in both concentrations typically also dedicate the summers between their first and second years and between their second and third years to the study of one or more languages. The Department sponsors a number of funding opportunities to support the cost of summer language programs for graduate students (see pages 23-25 of this Handbook).

Language competency is demonstrated by means of examination. The Department sets examination dates in October and March. Students must register for the examination they wish to take with the departmental administrative assistant at least 2 weeks prior to the scheduled date. The language examination consists of 400-500 words of original text in a modern language or 300-400 words of original text in an ancient language, which students must translate into clear English during a two-hour period with the aid of a print dictionary. Faculty both select the original text and evaluate the examinations according to the Language Competency Examination Rubric (see Appendix B).

By the end of their first semester of study, all students must demonstrate competency in at least one of their research languages, either modern or ancient. Before advancing to the prospectus examination in the third year of study, students must have completed all language requirements and demonstrated competency in each of their research languages.

E. Examinations

All doctoral students must take 4 written examinations: the first at the end of the fall semester of year 1, the second at the end of the spring semester of year 1, the third at the end of the fall semester of year 2, and the fourth at the end of the spring semester of year 2. Exam dates are set by the Department and will be communicated to students at the beginning of the academic year.

The content of each exam is as follows:

Exam 1: Primary Sources in the Study of Christianity in Antiquity or Primary Sources in the Study of Christian Theology

Exam 2: Theories and Methods

Exam 3: Context of Study (historical complex or theological subdiscipline; i.e., Rabbinic Judaism, Christian History, Theological Ethics, etc.)

Exam 4: Literature Review of Dissertation Topic

Preparation for the exams normally involves a combination of coursework and supplementary reading. At a minimum, students should strive for the level of knowledge and expertise required to teach a course on the subject. Questions for exams 1 and 3 will be developed, respectively, by faculty teaching CA Survey or CT Introduction and by faculty teaching Theories and Methods on the basis of standard departmental reading lists. Questions for exams 2 and 4 will be developed by students' mentors and will be based on reading lists developed by students in collaboration with their mentors.

For exams 1-3, the CGS will create a committee of three examiners, solicit questions from faculty, and submit exam questions to the departmental administrative assistant at least 3 days prior to the exam.

Exams are typically scheduled the first Monday of exam period. For each exam, students will be asked to answer two of three essay questions in three hours. Exam 4 is a 15-20 page (typed, double-spaced) literature review that students will prepare over the course of a semester. Examiners will evaluate the written exams according to the appropriate rubrics (see Appendices J-M) within two weeks and will communicate the results of the exams to the departmental administrative assistant. Students must receive two passing votes to successfully complete each exam. If a student fails the exam, the student may retake the exam once within six months of the original exam date.

F. Prospectus

In year three of the program, students register for “Prospectus” (Theo 6210) under their dissertation director in both the fall and spring semesters. In the fall semester and in consultation with their director, students select two faculty members to serve as readers on their dissertation committee. In exceptional cases a tenured faculty member from outside DTS or SLU may serve as a reader if the Department does not have a faculty member with relevant expertise. The dissertation director must petition the CGS for an external reader by October 1 of year 3.

By November 1, students must submit the antepenultimate draft of their prospectus to their director. The prospectus is a 20-25 page document that adheres to the Prospectus Template (see Appendix N). The prospectus should 1) pose a research question of significance to the field of historical theology and deserving of a dissertation-length response, 2) articulate a clear and concise thesis statement that responds directly to the question posed and drives the structure of the proposed dissertation, 3) demonstrate a familiarity with relevant primary sources, as well as a solid grasp of the existing scholarship on the question, and 4) articulate a research method appropriate to the question posed. The purpose of the prospectus is to demonstrate that the proposed dissertation will make a significant contribution to scholarship and can feasibly be completed in a three-year window.

After receiving feedback from the dissertation director (by November 15), students must revise and resubmit the penultimate draft of the prospectus to the entire committee by December 15. After receiving feedback from the entire committee (by January 15), students must 1) revise and submit the final draft of the prospectus by February 15, 2) complete the “Doctoral Examination Form,” available at <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-education/current-students> (under “Forms and Deadlines”), and 3) schedule a two-hour oral defense of the prospectus with the departmental administrative assistant on or before March 1.

The purpose of the oral defense is to strengthen the student's proposed dissertation project. Students should dedicate the first 15 minutes of the two-hour period to a discussion of the proposed dissertation's anticipated conclusions and emphasize the contribution that the dissertation will make to knowledge in the field, especially its relationship to important current scholarly trajectories. Following the presentation, members of the Dissertation Committee ask questions based on their assessment of the written prospectus and evaluate the defense according to the Prospectus Oral Defense Rubric (see Appendix O). The committee then communicates the results of the defense to the departmental administrative assistant. The prospectus is evaluated on a "pass"/"fail" basis. If a student fails the prospectus, the student can resubmit and defend the prospectus once.

After students have passed the oral defense, students must submit the Application for Advancement to Candidacy (to be received by email) and a copy of the completed prospectus to the Doctoral Candidacy Advisor. Students must also give copies of both the application and the prospectus to the CGS. The Office of Graduate Education will then advance students to candidacy.

G. Dissertation

While candidates will consult with their directors at least once per semester, they are expected to work independently and complete their dissertations in a timely manner.

In most cases candidates will conduct a public, oral defense of the dissertation between April 15 of the fifth year and April 15 of the sixth year. Students who have not successfully defended their dissertation by April 15 of the sixth year may petition for a single, one-year extension on their time to degree, in accordance with the guidelines in the Graduate Education Catalog, provided that they have received no more than one "not meeting expectations" in "Research Quality" or "Research Quantity" in years 4-6 of the doctoral program (see page 21 of this Handbook).

Dissertation Guidelines

The dissertation is a significant piece of academic research totaling roughly 75,000 words in length (excluding front matter, footnotes, appendices, and bibliography). The departmental guidelines for a dissertation are the following:

1. Dissertations must not exceed 300 double-spaced, typed pages (100,000 words), must be fully documented (footnotes or endnotes), and must be accompanied by a properly formatted bibliography.
2. Appendices may be included in addition to the main text, but collectively they may not exceed 200 pages in length.
3. The dissertation must include a short abstract, table of contents, and continuous pagination. Numbering of notes should only be continuous for each chapter and not for the whole dissertation.
4. Citation of non-English sources should be in translation with the original text in the note – unless the presentation of the foreign language in the text is crucial to a particular argument.
5. The bibliography must be divided into the following categories: unpublished primary sources, published primary sources, and secondary sources.

6. For complete formatting guidelines, consult the “Saint Louis University formatting guidelines” (see “Formatting Guides” at <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-education/current-students>).

Dissertation Oral Defense

At the beginning of the semester in which candidates anticipate defending their dissertation, they must complete the “Application for Degree” form (instructions at <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-education/current-students> under “Doctoral Forms and Policies,” “Forms and Deadlines”).

The Department’s administrative assistant will schedule the date, time and location of the defense in consultation with the dissertation committee and candidate. The defense must be completed by April 30 for candidates to participate in spring Graduate Ceremonies.

Candidates must submit the penultimate version of their dissertation to their director at least three months before the anticipated defense date to allow for assessment and the opportunity for revision. At this time the director will distribute the dissertation to the other committee members who will then have one month to assess the dissertation. If the committee deems the dissertation suitable for defense, the candidate will have one month to make all recommended revisions and complete the required formatting.

Once revisions and formatting are complete, the candidate must submit the final draft of the dissertation to each member of the committee at least one month before the scheduled date for the oral defense. At this time candidates must complete their portion of the “Notification of Readiness for the Public Oral Presentation of the Dissertation Defense” (available at <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-education/current-students> at “Doctoral Forms and Policies” under “Forms and Deadlines”).

The oral defense of the dissertation must not exceed two (2) hours in length. The defense begins with the introduction of the candidate by his or her dissertation director. The candidate then gives a presentation of less than thirty (30) minutes on the subject of the dissertation. The candidate may use audio-visual materials or other appropriate materials in the presentation of her or his research project. In the presentation, the candidate should discuss the dissertation’s major conclusions and emphasize the contribution that the dissertation makes to knowledge in the field, especially its relationship to important current scholarly trajectories. Following the formal presentation, the candidate’s dissertation committee will have the first opportunity to ask questions, after which the candidate will be expected to field questions from the general audience. The director is responsible for the conduct of the question and answer period.

The Dissertation Committee evaluates the written dissertation according to the Dissertation Rubric (see Appendix P) and the oral defense according to the Dissertation Oral Defense Rubric (see Appendix Q). In both cases, the evaluation options are “pass with distinction,” “pass,” and “fail.” A majority positive evaluation by the committee is required for final approval of the dissertation. The result of the committee will then be submitted to the College’s Doctoral Candidacy Advisor. At this point, the dissertation director converts all Theo 6990 (“Dissertation Research”) grades from “IP” to “Satisfactory.” If the student fails the dissertation or the defense, the student can resubmit and defend the dissertation once.

Following a successful oral defense, the candidate must make an appointment with the Doctoral Candidacy Advisor for a format review. Once any additional corrections are made, the candidate must convert the document to a PDF file before submitting it electronically to Pro-Quest for digital archiving and publication of the abstract via Digital Abstracts International. This must be done before degree conferral.

V. Assistantships

All doctoral students are admitted on assistantship, with 54 credit hours of tuition remission, health insurance benefits, and an $18,000 stipend per nine-month contract or a $22,000 stipend per 11-month contract. In exchange, students provide 20 hours of work per each week of the contract period.

In their first two years, students will be assigned as Research Assistants to particular faculty members. Typically, RAs assist faculty in their research, and may from time to time help with teaching. RAs strengthen their research skills and contribute to an original research project.

In their third year, students typically serve as TAs for DTS faculty. In their fourth year, all students teach four introductory courses for the Department. When students begin teaching for the Department they will be mentored by faculty. The result of this mentoring will be a letter of recommendation that comments specifically on the student's teaching. Students are also strongly encouraged to regularly participate in a number of the ongoing programs offered by the Reinert Center for Transformative Teaching and Learning.

Assistantships are renewable at the discretion of the Department for four years, provided students remain in good academic standing and are meeting expectations. In the fifth year, students may be awarded Mentored Teaching Assistantships. By the terms of this assistantship, awardees receive an $18,000 stipend and health insurance benefits in exchange for teaching four courses in the Department.

VI. Annual Reviews and Benchmarks for Performance

The Graduate Studies Committee conducts annual reviews of all graduate students each spring. Students must submit to the CGS a signed, hard copy of their completed portion of the Annual Review form by March 15 of each year of study. For the Doctoral Annual Review form, see Appendix R.

In general, students are expected to "meet expectations" in each of the 8 evaluative categories of the Annual Review. Students may be placed on academic probation if they are deemed "not meeting expectations" in any category and must emerge from academic probation within one year. Students who are deemed "not meeting expectations" in any category for a second time will be dismissed from the program.

Specific benchmarks for performance at each stage in the program are as follows:

Coursework (years 1-2)

Students are expected to maintain a minimum 3.5 GPA for each semester of coursework. Students who fall beneath this GPA will be placed on academic probation. If they do not have a cumulative 3.5 GPA at the end of coursework, and/or have not completed all their courses at the end of the spring semester of their second year, they will be dismissed from the program.

Examinations (years 1-2)

If students fail an exam, they will re-take it before the end of the semester in which the exam was scheduled, or in the case of exams scheduled for the end of a semester, at the beginning of the next semester. A second failure of any exam results in dismissal from the program.

Languages (years 1-3)

All incoming students will be dismissed if they do not successfully complete one language exam before the end of their first semester.

Students are expected to complete all their language requirements by the end of the spring semester of their third year. If they have not passed their language requirements by this time, they will be dismissed from the program.

Prospectus (year 3)

Students must defend their prospectus on or before March 1 of their third year. If they do not pass their defense, they may defend the prospectus one more time, on or before September 15 of the following semester. Failure to successfully defend the prospectus by September 15 of the fourth year results in dismissal from the program.

Dissertation (years 4-7)

Students are expected to have successfully defended the dissertation by April 15 of their sixth year.

If students have not successfully defended their dissertation by April 15 of their sixth year, they may petition for a single, one-year extension on their time to degree, in accordance with the guidelines in the Graduate Education Catalog. They may do so provided that they have received no more than one “not meeting expectations” in “Research Quality” or “Research Quantity” in years 4-6 of the doctoral program. Students who have been granted a one-year extension on their time to degree, but who fail to satisfy the contractual terms of their extension will be dismissed from the program.

Other Considerations

The expectation is that graduate students will provide appropriate quality and quantity of service through their Assistantship, make a conscientious effort to develop themselves professionally, and exemplify collegiality, that is, respectful and civil interactions with all other members of the University community, and the ability to work collaboratively in achieving common goals. Students who violate codes of professional conduct or standards of collegiality may be dismissed from the program.

VII. Time to Degree

Doctoral students are responsible for staying apprised of and meeting all dates and deadlines required by the Office of Graduate Education as well as those indicated in this Handbook. Forms mentioned below are available at: <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-education/current-students>.

The following table provides an overview of the typical sequence toward earning the doctoral degree:

	Progress toward Degree	Source of Funding
Year 1: Fall	Coursework (9 hours) Pass 1 language exam Exam 1 (end of semester)	Research Assistant
Year 1: Spring	Coursework (9 hours) Exam 2 (end of semester) Annual Review: March 15	Research Assistant

VIII. Graduation Procedures

In the beginning of the semester in which they intend to graduate, candidates must follow the procedures of the Office of Graduate Education (see http://www.slu.edu/Documents/graduate/graduate_education/Process%20for%20PhD%20Students.pdf).

All graduating students must also schedule an exit interview with their dissertation directors. For the exit interview, see Appendix D.

The doctoral degree is conferred on the day that all requirements are met (i.e., all grades posted, dissertation accepted on ProQuest, defense ballots submitted), not on the day candidates defend their dissertation.

IX. Special Opportunities

There are a number of special opportunities available through DTS, SLU, and beyond that can enhance the experience of doctoral students at all stages of the program.

Language Reading Groups

Language Reading Groups meet informally upon availability of faculty throughout the semester to encourage development and retention of language skills. These groups are usually led by faculty and tend to focus on the reading and translation of primary texts in languages other than English.

Brown Bag Lunches

On Tuesdays during the academic year, DTS hosts brown-bag lunches for all graduate students and faculty in the Department. Brown-bag lunches provide opportunities for faculty or graduate students to present ongoing work or to discuss some aspect of the profession. These lunches are intended to foster community in the Department and to contribute to the formation of DTS graduate students as scholars.

Professional Development Series

DTS runs a Professional Development Series for its first- and second-year doctoral students. The series consists of a 28-week program that runs on a two-year cycle, meeting 14 times (every other week) each academic year. The first half of the 28-week program focuses on the general subject of “Becoming a Professional Academic,” addressing topics such as “Networking and Etiquette,” “Grantsmanship,” and “The Academic Job Search.” The second half of the program focuses on preparing students for careers outside of professional academia, an area widely known as alt-ac. Students are required to complete this series as part of the degree audit.

Jesuit Language Scholarship

The Jesuit Community at SLU has made available funds (up to $3000) for doctoral students in Historical Theology to be used for language immersion programs. Students who have already demonstrated competency in one foreign language may apply for these funds. Upon completion of a language immersion program, students must submit a brief written report to the chair of the Department. Interested students should request an application from the departmental secretary early in the spring semester prior to the summer in which they intend to use the funds.

Graduate Student Action Committee

The DTS-SAC is a committee of four graduate students in Historical Theology in service to all the graduate students in the Department. The goal of DTS-SAC is to enhance the graduate student experience within the Department. To find out more about DTS-SAC, see <https://sites.google.com/a/sluedu/dtssac/>.

Graduate Student Association

The GSA represents all full-time and part-time students enrolled in the Graduate School. The GSA sponsors the annual Graduate Student Research Symposium and assists with funding for travel to academic conferences. One student from DTS serves as the representative of the Department to the GSA and acts as a liaison between DTS graduate students and the other graduate students in the university. To find out more about the GSA, see <https://sites.google.com/a/sluedu/graduate-student-association/>.

Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies

The Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies supports, coordinates, and promotes the extraordinary array of scholars, students, and resources devoted to medieval and early modern research at Saint Louis University. One of the largest in America, the Center is home to more than sixty full-time faculty members. By supporting students, conferences, speakers, fellowships, library acquisitions, and professorships the Center enriches the intellectual environment for medievalists and early modernists on campus and around the world. To find out more about the CMRS, see <http://www.sluedu/center-for-medieval-and-renaissance-studies-home>.

Reinert Center for Transformative Teaching and Learning

The Reinert Center for Transformative Teaching and Learning offers a Certificate in University Teaching Skills that enables doctoral students to strengthen their pedagogical skills. All students are encouraged to enroll by their fourth year in the program. To find out more about the Reinert Center for Transformative Teaching and Learning, see <http://www.sluedu/ctl>.

Dissertation Fellowship

The Saint Louis University Dissertation Fellowship is awarded to competitive PhD candidates whose work demonstrates outstanding academic achievement and whose dissertation will significantly extend the body of knowledge within their discipline. Students interested in being nominated should contact their Department or PhD Mentor. For eligibility requirements, deadlines, and application, see <http://www.sluedu/graduate-education/dissertation-fellowships>.

GSA Conference Award

Graduate students are eligible to apply for awards given by the GSA to fund conference presentations and attendance. For eligibility requirements, deadlines, and application see <http://gsa.slu.edu/awards/conference-awards>.

Funding Database

DTS maintains a catalog of internal and external grants and funding opportunities available to graduate students. See http://www.slu.edu/Documents/arts_sciences/theological_studies/FundingDissertationResearch.pdf.

Miscellaneous

In addition to the above, the Department has available to it limited funds to offset the cost of tuition and to cover other student initiatives. These funding opportunities are routinely communicated to students at the end of each spring semester.

DIRECTORY OF CAMPUS RESOURCES

Office of Graduate Education

The Office of Graduate Education is located within Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs. It coordinates SLU's more than 80 graduate programs, along with graduate minors and dual degree programs. For information on policies and procedures, along with required forms, please see <http://www.slu.edu/graduate-education>.

College of Arts and Sciences

In addition to the Office of Graduate Education, each school and college at SLU has an Associate Dean or Director of Graduate Education who oversees the day-to-day operations of graduate programs in their school or college. Theological Studies is located in the College of Arts and Sciences: <http://www.slu.edu/college-of-arts-and-sciences-home>. Contact information for Jan Barber, the Associate Dean of Graduate Education in the College of Arts and Sciences is as follows:

Health Insurance

SLU requires all full-time graduate students to have basic health insurance.

If you do not have a graduate assistantship, you will be enrolled in the University Health Plan (<http://www.slu.edu/x46428.xml>), a self-insured health and medical care cost coverage plan sponsored by SLU. Coverage is available to eligible full-time undergraduate, graduate/professional, and medical students, as well as graduate assistants and medical residents. UPH insurance covers 9 months per year. Summers are not covered, nor is summer health insurance required for the general student population. Contact information for the UHP is as follows:

University Health Plan
314-977-5666

If you have other health insurance coverage, you may waive your UHP coverage. To waive UHP coverage, a completed Health Insurance Waiver Form must be submitted along with evidence of other coverage in effect (a front and back copy of a current insurance card or a letter of verification from current plan). Evidence of other coverage documents must specifically list your name and a policy number. Completed Health Insurance Waiver Forms and evidence of other coverage documents are only applicable to the academic year in which they are submitted. Students who do not submit a Health Insurance Waiver Form and evidence of other coverage during orientation, an open enrollment period, or a special enrollment period will be charged for UHP coverage. Graduate and professional students must submit Health Insurance Waiver Forms and evidence of other coverage documents to the Student Health and Counseling Center staff.

If you have a graduate assistantship, UHP insurance is included as part of your assistantship package.

Student Health Center

The Student Health Center (<http://www.slu.edu/student-health-center>) provides medical treatment and health education for full-time and part-time undergraduate and graduate students at SLU. Contact information is as follows:

- Weeks, Stuart. An Introduction to the Study of Wisdom Literature. London: T & T Clark, 2010.

Questions

1. Describe the nature of the biblical text, paying careful attention to its revelatory function, authorship, inspiration, and the relationship between the testaments. Please substantiate your answer with reference to landmark ecclesial documents of the past century, such as Divino Afflante Spiritu, “Dei Verbum,” and the Pontifical Biblical Commission’s The Interpretation of the Bible in the Church.
2. Discuss the purpose(s) of biblical exegesis. Explain the primary hermeneutical methods employed in the study of scripture, focusing especially on the historical-critical and literary methods. Please substantiate your answer with examples drawn from both testaments and with reference to the documents listed in Question 1.
3. Describe the God of the Old Testament as well as the covenantal relationship between God and human beings.
4. Construct a composite portrait of the Jesus of the canonical gospels. Discuss how the early Church understands the significance of Jesus’ life, death, and resurrection.

II. Systematic Theology

- , Jesus the Liberator: A Historical-Theological Reading of Jesus of Nazareth. Maryknoll, NY: Orbis, 1994.

Questions

1. In The Trinity, Karl Rahner argues that one could dispense with the doctrine of the Trinity and most religious literature would remain virtually unchanged. So what? What is the deeper point Rahner is making here? How is this relevant to the practice of theology?
2. The bishops present at the Extraordinary Synod of 1985 affirmed that the proper hermeneutic for reading the documents of Vatican II is through the lens of an ecclesiology of communion. In Communion Ecclesiology, Dennis Doyle suggests that there are distinctive varieties of ecclesiologies of communion. Describe two of these ecclesiologies, explain the differences between them, and indicate how they draw their inspiration from the documents of Vatican II. Which do you find most satisfactory? Why?
3. Identify at least two characteristics of the post-modern intellectual ethos that challenge the assumptions of modernity. What are their implications for the practice of theology?
4. Describe and analyze some of the chief characteristics of the Christologies of Karl Rahner and Jon Sobrino in terms of their respective starting points, methods, and thematic emphases. In what ways do these Christologies compliment and/or correct each other? What are some of the implications of Rahner's and Sobrino's work for the future of Christology?

- Panicola, Michael R. An Introduction to Health Care Ethics: Theological Foundations, Contemporary Issues, and Controversial Cases. Winona, MN: Anselm Academic, 2007.

Questions

1. Briefly describe the development of Catholic social thought in the papal encyclical tradition. Comment upon the sources utilized by this tradition, and discuss this tradition's approach concerning two of the following topics:
 - a. the understanding of the "right" to private property
 - b. the understanding of human rights
 - c. the ethical critique of communism and capitalism
 - d. the role of the family in society

- e. the understanding of justice and charity.
2. Present an analysis of how the sources of Christian ethical reflection (scripture, church tradition, natural law/human reason, and experience) are utilized for one moral issue (i.e., gender, racism, homosexuality, war and peace, capital punishment, or prolonging life).
3. How distinctive are Christian ethics? Delineate and discuss the principal sources and themes that mark a distinctively Christian approach to and understanding of theological ethics. Describe the major positions on the question of distinctiveness and defend one.
4. Compare and contrast virtue ethics with the manualist natural law tradition. Illustrate the differences between these two approaches to ethics by analyzing one issue in social, family, or bioethics.

IV. Historical Theology

A. Early Christianity

- Augustine. On Christian Belief. Edited by Michael Fiedrowicz, 15-104; 265-343. Hyde Park: New City Press, 2005.
- Basil of Caesarea. On the Holy Spirit. Translated by David Anderson. Crestwood, NY: St. Vladimir's Seminary Press, 1980.
- Ephrem the Syrian. Hymns Against Julian. Translated and edited by Kathleen E. McVey. New York: Paulist Press, 1989.
- Hardy, Edward R., ed. Christology of the Later Fathers, 327-374. Philadelphia: Westminster, 1995.
- Jerome. Letter 133. In Christianity in Late Antiquity, 300-450 C.E., edited by Bart D. Ehrman and Andrew S. Jacobs, 200-212. New York: Oxford University Press, 2004.
- Justin Martyr. First Apology. Translated and edited by Leslie William Barnard. New York: Paulist, 1996.
- Irenaeus. Demonstration of Apostolic Preaching. Translated and edited by Iain M. MacKenzie. Burlington, VT: Ashgate, 2002.
- Origen, On Prayer. Translated and edited by Rowan Greer. New York: Paulist Press, 1979.
- Wilken, Robert. The Spirit of Early Christian Thought. New Haven: Yale University Press, 2003.

Questions

1. Throughout On the Holy Spirit Basil refuses to call the Holy Spirit “God” explicitly. If the purpose of this treatise is not to argue for the Holy Spirit as “God,” what exactly is its purpose? How does Basil nonetheless argue for the divinity of the Holy Spirit and how does his method in De Spiritu Sancto reveal wider concerns of the later fourth century?
2. Early thinkers such as Justin Martyr, Irenaeus, and Origen are oftentimes accused of a Trinitarian subordinationism. Consider Origen’s reference to “two Gods,” his counsel against praying to Christ (On Prayer, XV.4), and Justin Martyr’s argument that the Logos is God “in the second place” (1 Apol. §13). With these early steps in mind, discuss the significance of the Nicene Symbol and how pro-Nicene thinkers came to argue against any suggestion subordinating the Son to the Father.
3. Augustine’s On True Religion is usually considered his last work where Neoplatonism is inextricably influential. Here, Augustine argues that all true Platonists could become Christians with the alteration of only a few words (§4.7). Discuss how Platonic and Neo-Platonic principles are used in this text 1) to argue against the Manichaean view of evil, 2) to show Christianity’s embrace of reason wherever found, and 3) to present the end of religious engagement as divine assent and appropriation.
4. Ephrem’s four Hymns against Julian mark a unique chapter in the history of Syriac Christianity. While the latter is often noted for its isolation from Greek literary models and theological concerns, the Hymns show Ephrem intimately engaged with the religio-political concerns of the fourth-century Roman Empire. Discuss the ways in which the Hymns conceive of empire and its relationship to Christianity and the role played by scripture in the articulation of this conception.

Questions

1. Aquinas asserted that "those who employ philosophical texts in sacred doctrine, putting it to the service of the faith, do not mingle water with wine, but change water into wine" (Exposition of Boethius's On the Trinity, 2.3). Discuss the medieval understanding of the relationship of philosophy and the liberal arts to the discipline of theology.
2. Provide a brief outline of the medieval understanding of one of the following subjects, making reference in your answer to at least three of the works you studied in preparation for this exam:
 - a. the interpretation of the scriptures,
 - b. the role and function of the papacy,
 - c. the monastic life, or
 - d. the soul's journey into God.
3. Discuss the significance of the Incarnation in medieval theology.

4. John van Engen claims that the “historical conjunction between the making of Europe and the spread of Christian allegiance rested upon an ever-changing mix of custom, law, and conviction, religious in coloration but political, social, and cultural in expression. Diverse practices and patterns, worked out over centuries, became so tightly interwoven that to pull on one was to stretch or unravel another” (“The Future of Medieval Church History,” 492). Is this an accurate portrayal of the realities of medieval Christianity, and how does it relate to medieval ideals regarding the cohesion of Christian society?

C. Modern Christianity

Questions

1. Please describe and distinguish the Lutheran and Tridentine views on justification. In what ways and in what directions have these sixteenth-century theologies of justification developed over the course of the modern period? Although your response may reference any of the texts on the required bibliography, please consider at least those of Erasmus, Luther, Kant, and Rauschenbusch.
2. Please discuss the relationship between Christianity and culture in the modern period. In what ways has Christianity challenged culture? Accommodated culture? To what extent has the influence of particular cultures given rise to novel theological ideas? Material practices? Iconographical representations? Although your response may reference any of the texts on the required bibliography, please consider at least those of Cholenec, Ahlgren, Anderson, and Sanneh.

Questions

1. In paragraph or outline form, map out how you would teach a section on one of the topics listed below. Indicate a particular demographic and context of your choice and feel free to broaden or narrow the topic as you see fit. At the end, or throughout, give your pedagogical reasoning for each aspect of the lesson.
 - a. Catholic Social Teaching
 - b. Church History
 - c. Creed
 - d. Ecumenism
 - e. Incarnation
 - f. Justice
 - g. Liturgy
 - h. Revelation
 - i. Sacraments

- j. Scripture
 - k. Virtue
2. In chapter 2 of Pedagogy of the Oppressed, Freire critiques the “banking” concept of education. Briefly, describe this concept, summarize Freire’s critique, and then evaluate it. Describe Freire’s alternative concept of education, what he calls the “humanist revolutionary” approach, and identify its chief goal and major characteristics. What is the role of “conversion” and “conscientization” in this concept of education? And how well does Freire’s model relate to the pedagogical principles laid down in magisterial and/or Ignatian documents?
 3. Based on your understanding of the Ratio Studiorum (1599), identify the general aim of Jesuit education. Describe what current cultural realities might 1) facilitate that aim, or 2) frustrate that aim. Then analyze contemporary Catholic education in the United States in order to evaluate how the existing structures facilitate or impede Jesuit pedagogy, suggesting adaptations for making the Ratio more relevant for the contemporary context.
 4. Juxtapose the current state of faith practice among youth and young adults in the United States with your understanding of Catholic education as expressed in relevant magisterial documents. How do you understand the educator’s role in navigating these two poles? How might different contexts influence the pedagogical strategies employed?

N: Prospectus Template

The dissertation prospectus is a 20-25 page document that gives a road map for the proposed dissertation, arguing for its feasibility and significance to the field. Below you will find a template outlining the elements of a strong prospectus. Please be advised that one of the crucial ingredients of a successful prospectus is a willingness to collaborate with and seek regular feedback from your dissertation director and members of your committee.

I. Introduction

At a minimum, the introduction must include a statement of the question animating the proposed dissertation. The question posed should be one that has not yet been answered or has been answered inadequately, that can be answered, and that deserves a dissertation-length response. The introduction must also include a thesis statement that directly responds to the question posed, is clear and concise, advances the field, and orients and drives the structure of the dissertation.

II. State of the Question/Literature Review

This section situates the proposed dissertation within the context of contemporary scholarship on point. In this section, you must review and critically assess approaches to the question you pose above, identifying trends, patterns, or major themes and evaluating the merits and limitations of existing scholarship. In this section, too, please comment on the ways in which your own proposed response to the question develops, challenges, departs from, or fills in the gaps of existing scholarship.

III. Primary Sources

In this section, you must identify the primary sources upon which you intend to rely for your dissertation research. You should discuss the location and accessibility of these sources, demonstrate your ability to use these sources in their original languages, and critically assess (where applicable) published editions of such primary sources.

IV. Method

In this section, you must articulate a methodological approach to the sources that inform your dissertation project. The methodological approach should be appropriate to both the types of sources upon which you will be relying as well as your proposed thesis. You should also consider the ways in which your methodological approach to the question compares to, contrasts with, or otherwise relates to the approaches of existing scholarship on your topic.

V. Chapter outline

In this section, you must provide a tentative outline of the chapters that will constitute your dissertation. Chapters should be arranged in such a way that demonstrates a logical and progressive argument in defense of your thesis.

VI. Bibliography

The bibliography consists of two sections—one for primary sources and one for secondary scholarship. All entries must be formatted in proper Chicago style.

ANSWER

COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATIONS

List the comprehensive exams you have taken, the dates of those exams, and their results. Provide an expected timeline for the completion of all exam requirements.

10. The following table summarizes the results of the study. The first column lists the variables, the second column lists the sample size, and the third column lists the estimated effect sizes.

DISSERTATION RESEARCH

Describe your current progress with the research requirements of the program (i.e., thesis, dissertation). Provide expected timelines, with dates, for completion of the major components of your thesis or dissertation (i.e., prospectus defense, written drafts of individual chapters, final written version, committee approval, oral defense).

10. The following table shows the number of hours worked by 1000 employees of a company. The data is grouped into 5 classes. Calculate the mean, median and mode.

ASSISTANTSHIP ACTIVITIES

Support: Have you received financial support from either SLU or external organizations? If so, what is the source (teaching assistantship or research assistantship from department, presidential scholarship, external fellowship, etc.)? Indicate whether your source of support included a stipend and the duration of the support contract. If none, leave blank.

Term	Source and Type of Support

Teaching: In which courses and semesters have you been a Teaching Assistant? In which courses and semesters have you been the Primary Instructor? If none, leave blank.

Term	Course #	Course Title	Instructor (for TAs)	Role

Research: With which faculty and in which semesters have you been a Research Assistant? If none, leave blank.

Term	Faculty Member	Main Activities

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

List below all presentations at professional meetings and conferences for the current academic year. Include any presentations to occur over the rest of the academic year, including summer.

List below all articles or manuscripts submitted for publication this academic year, indicating the journal to which they were submitted and the results of editorial reviews.

List below all internal or external grant submissions (or your participation in submissions) this academic year, indicating the funding source to which they were submitted and the results of the reviews, if known.

Describe any specialized training in teaching. Have you completed or do you plan on completing the Certificate Program in Teaching from the Reinert Center for Transformative Teaching and Learning?

List below all internships that you have had this academic year, indicating the place, time commitment, and activities of the program.

List all professional organizations of which you are a student member, including any offices held.

Describe any professional service and/or leadership positions associated with the university, graduate education, department or program. Indicate your title and dates of service.

List any awards, honors and achievements you have received this academic year.

Are there any other factors that you would like to have included in your evaluation?

EVALUATION: TO BE COMPLETED BY FACULTY

Based on the faculty's discussion, the quality of your work was rated in each of the following areas.

	Not Meeting Expectations	Meeting Expectations
Academic Quality of Coursework
Research Quality of Thesis, Prospectus or Dissertation
