2021 Excellence Awards

CHAIFETZ SCHOOL OF BUSINESS
SAINT LOUIS UNIVERSITY
It has been my sincere honor to join the Chaifetz School this year as Edward Jones Dean. While I was excited for the opportunity to lead a nationally-ranked business school so well situated among a thriving business community, I could not have anticipated the level of talent and passion I would find among our students, faculty, staff and alumni.

In just a few short months, I have come to learn what a truly special place the Chaifetz School is. What a privilege it is for me to be a part of the business Billiken community.

This academic year has been one unlike any other. That we completed the year without a single interruption to on-campus learning is a testament to the dedication of our faculty and staff and the commitment of our students to act in the interest of others.

But the Chaifetz School more than survived the 2020-2021 academic year. We thrived.

We are thrilled to recognize the accomplishments of our students, faculty, staff and alumni through the 2021 Excellence Awards. Please enjoy this compilation of our outstanding award-winners.

SINCERELY,

BARNALI GUPTA, PH.D.

Li has completed internships at the Industrial and Commercial Bank of China, Beijing Zhong Zheng Tian Tong Certified Public Accountants, Wuhan Wanmuchun Business Trade Company Limited and Hubei Hengping Chutian Accounting Co., Ltd.

She has also received awards in the areas of business strategy, environmental protection and AIDS Prevention. After graduation, she plans to pursue graduate study of computer science.
After pursuing an undergraduate degree in physical education at He Nan Normal University in China, Dongdong worked several years as a Product Manager at Henan Yugang Coking Co. Ltd. As a student, Dongdong brought curiosity and insight to his supply chain coursework.

When faced with a challenging problem, Dongdong not only performed the requisite analysis, he probed deeper, searching for explanation and understanding beyond what was provided in class.
Johnny graduated from Saint Louis University in 2013 with a degree in social work. After college, he began his professional career as an Assistant Program Director and Lead Residential Counselor. Since then, Johnny has joined the One-Year MBA program at the Chaifetz School of Business.

While in the program, Johnny was elected OY MBA Class Representative to serve as a liaison between students, professors, and staff managing the program.

He also participated in the TCU Supply Chain Case Competition and completed an internship with Habitat for Neighborhood Business. Following graduation, Johnny intends to pursue a career in non-profit development.
In 2011, James received his B.S. in Mechanical Engineering from Southern Illinois University - Edwardsville. While at SIUE, he was a member of Pi Tau Sigma Mechanical Engineering Honors Society and Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity.

In 2014, he received a certificate in CNC Machining from Southwestern Illinois College in Granite City, IL.

James has worked for Olin Winchester, LLC, since his engineering co-op with them in 2010, and currently works as a Product Management Specialist. He plans to continue his career with Winchester after graduation.
In 2010, Jason graduated cum laude from Missouri S&T with a B.S. in Electrical Engineering. He has remained dedicated to furthering his education, and pursued continuing education courses after receiving his undergraduate degree. He currently works as a Lead Design and Analysis Engineer at The Boeing Company.

Prior to joining Boeing, Jason spent almost ten years as an Electronic Design Engineer for John Deere Electronic Solutions. In his free time, Jason has volunteered for the Special Olympics, VA Hospital and Knights of Columbus.

Jason graduates with a passion for building engaged teams in an evolving multinational context.
Patricio Duran, Assistant Professor of International Business, received a Diamond Publication Award for his article “Impact of informal institutions on the prevalence, strategy, and performance of family firms: A meta-analysis” published in the Journal of International Business Studies.

Each year, the members of Beta Gamma Sigma who vote to select the most Outstanding Teacher. All undergraduate and graduate faculty members who have not won in the past two years are eligible. This year, the organization selected Assistant Professor and Director of the Master of Accounting Program Neil Jansen as its most Outstanding Teacher Award winner.
Executive Master of International Business students chose Dr. Patricio Duran, Assistant Professor of International Business, as Teacher of the Year. EMIB students cited his engaging and interactive teaching style, as well as his industry experience he brings to the classroom, as critical in helping them make the connection between their studies in the program and their work as executives.
Chaifetz School graduate students selected Abhimanyu Gupta as the 2021 Graduate Business Faculty of the Year. One student wrote:

“Abhi is not only one of the kindest professors I’ve ever had, but he truly cares about our success and understanding of content. He has met with me on numerous last minute occasions, late nights, and early mornings to help walk me through programs and processes. He’s extremely patient with all of his students and will do whatever he can to make an impact on us.”
The Innovation in Teaching Award recognizes a faculty member who brings creativity to the classroom to build successful learning environments for our students. This year’s award goes to Jintong Tang, Mary Louise Murray Endowed Professor of Management.

Connecting with students in online asynchronous courses has been a challenge during the pandemic, but Dr. Tang re-designed her courses to give students a cohesive learning experience. Her microlearning approach breaks chapters into short videos and slides, allowing students to absorb smaller pieces of new information efficiently. Her short form videos also provide key point summary and follow-up questions which serve to engage students with subsequent videos.
CURRICULUM INNOVATION GRANTEES

Naresh Bansal

Mamoun Benmamoun

Olgin Sahin

Lei Zhao
Over her long career, Jeanne Rhodes has served the Chaifetz School and the St. Louis entrepreneurship community through thick and thin, enduring countless changes over the years but helping ensure the school always maintains its commitments, nurtures the entrepreneurial spirit of young and aspiring entrepreneurs and remains a national leader in entrepreneurship.

One nominator had this to say of Jeanne’s tireless dedication:

“Simply put, her dedication, commitment and compassion has been increasingly and even sometimes quite sorely tested over the past year over and above what it was for the prior 40 years. She has never faltered or thought about giving less than her all for the Center for Entrepreneurship, even when no one was around, even when no one was looking. In every sense of the word she is the embodiment of the consummate professional among Administrative Assistants, and an exemplar of SLU’s values of magis, service, and cura standards. As such, she uniquely and unreservedly deserves the School’s highest accolade for our staff.”
Ben is beloved by students and colleagues alike for his welcoming demeanor and friendly smile. Fellow faculty admire his effectiveness as a teacher and his dedication to consistently employ new methods to make material relevant and engage students in the classroom.

Ben has always supported colleagues in leveraging technology to enhance their courses and the support he provided fellow faculty was critical in the Chaifetz School’s successful pivot to online and hybrid learning during the pandemic. Ben also shares his expertise with the university community as an Online Teaching Fellow for the Reinert Center for Transformative Teaching and Learning.

He further supports effective student learning and faculty teaching through his work on a SLU Core Subcommitee, the Virtual Computing Working Group, the Learning Technology Advisory Committee, the Canvas Stakeholders Working Group and many other committees.
The Patricia Gallati Memorial Staff Service Award is given annually in honor of Pat Gallati who served the Chaifetz School as an administrative assistant for more than 40 years until 2017.

Over the past three years, Katelyn has grown in responsibilities and contributions to the Chaifetz School and our students rising from a Student Services Associate to the Assistant Director of Graduate Programs. She’s continually taken the initiative to pitch in and do whatever needs to be done, whether it was her job or not and has handled a growing portfolio of duties with dedication and grace. Through it all, she maintains a student-centered focus that helps ensure a positive experience for our Chaifetz graduate students from application to graduation and beyond. She also supports the school as the chair of the Chaifetz School Staff Assembly.

“Katelyn is a great asset to the business school in many ways, not the least being that she reliably delivers all that she is asked to accomplish. Her work is outstanding, exceeded only by her care and concern for her colleagues and the students in the programs she support.”
Debbie is tireless in her dedication to students. Over the course of the pandemic, she’s taken every challenge in stride and navigated the constantly shifting landscape seamlessly to ensure the Chaifetz School has continued to deliver an impactful educational experience for our students. She’s put in long hours and looked out for the interest of students at every corner. She’s also balanced the demands of the assistant dean’s office with teaching responsibilities to continue delivering engaging instruction. And she’s been creative in collaborating with the Office of Admissions to execute innovative recruitment initiatives to help grow the Chaifetz School’s enrollment.

A true servant leader, Debbie has also been a dedicated advisor to the school’s Beta Alpha Psi chapter, being recognized with their Outstanding Faculty Award in 2019 and Beta Alpha Psi International’s Outstanding Faculty Advisor Award in the same year.

When Debbie isn’t working to support Chaifetz School students she also serves vulnerable members of our community as a board member of St. Martha’s Hall, a Catholic Charities’ shelter for victims of domestic violence.
The Fr. Thomas M. Knapp, S.J., Distinguished Faculty Member Award is designed to recognize an individual faculty member who consistently demonstrates significant academic achievement, excellence in teaching, and a commitment to fostering a supportive culture of solidarity and community, in the best spirit of our university’s Jesuit, Catholic mission. This year, the award is presented to Dr. Bidisha Chakrabarty.

Bidisha exemplifies the qualities of this Knapp Award, serving as Chair of the Department of Finance and the Edward Jones Endowed Professor of Finance, Senior Editor for Decision Sciences, and Associate Editor for QJFA. She consistently publishes in the top journals in her field (including 3 Diamond publications) and receives excellent student evaluations for her teaching. Her service involvement at the school and university levels are substantial, including the University Committee on Rank and Tenure and the University’s Gender Equity Task Force.
Recognized as one of the most accomplished commercial real estate entrepreneurs in St. Louis, her civic and community engagement are truly remarkable. Marian graduated with honors from the Accounting program and spent the majority of her career with THF Realty, and later TKG Management, whose developments have shaped the commercial landscape of Missouri and the U.S.

Marian is truly a person for others. As a volunteer she has been president of the St. Louis Art Fair, Jazz St. Louis, the Wilson School, the Central West End’s Youth Technology and Education Center, and she is this year’s president of Women of Achievement, an award she also received in 2013.

She has always been a mentor to women, and has continued to give back to SLU through her teaching in the entrepreneurship program in the Chaifetz School.
ERIC MORACZEWSKI
The Distinguished Young Alumni Award

Eric Moraczewski is a proven, pragmatic, and data driven CEO and CFO specializing in startups and turnarounds with for profits, nonprofits and public-private partnerships across 20-plus countries and four continents. He is a proven global business leader with success in financial, operational and strategic planning roles.

In the years since his graduation Eric has a number of accomplishments including managing the national expansion of a D.C.-based design firm and its several media subsidiaries; founding a Colorado-based strategic consulting practice assisting foreign firms in Asia, especially China, in growing their presence in the U.S.; and, back here at home, directing the completion of the $380-million renovation and opening of the St. Louis Arch grounds and museum.

Among its early accomplishments, the company has consulted for the Chinese Office of Culture and Tourism on the design selection of a new monument in Hengyang, China as part of a new, $2 billion project to usher in development into the western region of that country.
Anthony earned his Bachelor's degree in Marketing as well as a Certificate in Service Leadership from Saint Louis University. While at SLU, he was honored with the President’s Service Award from President George W. Bush.

Anthony is Vice President of Labor Relations at the Associated General Contractors of Missouri, the largest civil, commercial, industrial and infrastructure contractor association in Missouri. As a member of the executive management team at the AGC, Anthony helps guide decision-making and identification of new opportunities to improve overall Association effectiveness, mission impact and value to members in the industry.

In addition to serving as President of the Chaifetz School of Business Alumni Engagement Board, Anthony is President of the Labor Employer Relations Association Board and Secretary/Treasurer of the Industrial Development Authority Board for St. Louis County Government. He has also been an avid volunteer for many years at his church.
Edward Jones is a leader with few peers in corporate citizenship not only in St. Louis but also nationwide. In addition to their longtime support for the United Way, the Arts and Education Council, the Alzheimer’s Association and Pedal the Cause, they have a longstanding and strong relationship with Saint Louis University.

In the Chaifetz School of Business alone they have created the Edward Jones Endowed Professorship in Finance, the Edward Jones Data Analytics Lab, and the Edward Jones Dean.

Over the years, Edward Jones has gifted over $4 million dollars to Saint Louis University, with more than half of that going to the Chaifetz School. In addition, during the current Accelerating Excellence campaign individual Edward Jones partners and associates have made more than $500,000 dollars in personal commitments to the school. Their partners and associates can also be found at all levels of University leadership, helping to guide SLU and our schools and colleges to a stronger future.
David Barbeau has had direct and material involvement with the school for many years both as a donor, and as a member of the Dean’s Executive Advisory Board. His record of service to the University as a volunteer, board member, leader, advisor and financial supporter exemplifies the value of men and women for and with others that animates Saint Louis University.

David is the CEO of Barbeau Consulting LLC, a company he formed in 2010. With over forty years of experience in the automotive industry, David brings senior level experience on a global scale. He has led the global aftermarket business unit of two Tier One automotive manufacturers, and was responsible for the profitable growth of these aftermarket businesses in all regions of the world.

David is considered an expert in the China aftermarket, having spent much time there helping Chinese-based companies grow their business in their local market and in the U.S. He also has hands-on experience in the distribution business as co-founder of Auto Parts Express, which is now part of Advance Auto Parts.

A St. Louis native, David is a U.S. Army veteran and obtained both his bachelor’s degree and MBA in Finance from the Chaifetz School of Business. He has served on the boards of the Automotive Sales Council, the Auto Care Association, and in 2016 served as Chairman of the Board of the Automotive Aftermarket Suppliers Association.
