ACADEMIC ATTIRE

The colorful attire worn by graduates, faculty, trustees and officers of the University has historic roots in the distant medieval past. Dressed in cap and gown, the graduates and their professors are part of a long tradition that dates back to Paris and Bologna, Italy, to Oxford and Cambridge, England, in the days of their Catholic glory.

The exact origins of several parts of the academic garb are a bit of a mystery. Because medieval students enjoyed the status of cleric during their university years, one might guess that their attire found its inspiration in the clerical dress of medieval times. The gown seems to be an adaptation of the robe of friar or priest; the hood, of the monk’s or friar’s cowl; and the mortarboard cap of today recalls the skullcap of days when tonsured heads needed protection against the drafts of medieval classrooms.

Academic attire began to appear on U.S. campuses in the late 1890s. Since that time, its use has become universal for solemn university functions, and its pattern is highly uniform.

THE GOWNS

The gowns are three in number and styling. That of the bachelor is a yoked, closed-front garment with long pointed sleeves; that of the master has sleeves long and closed but slit just above the elbow to allow the forearms to protrude; the gown of the doctor has full, bell-shaped sleeves. Only the doctor’s gown is trimmed — with velvet panels down the front and three velvet bars on each sleeve.

THE HOOD

The hood at first seems to have been worn over the head and attached to the gown. When the skullcap was introduced, the hood was retained but detached and worn much as it is today. Each degree (bachelor’s, master’s, doctoral) has its special hood, which varies in length and, for the doctor, also in pattern. The color or colors lining the hood are those of the college or university that granted the wearer’s degree. For example, Saint Louis University is known by blue chevron on a field of white. The colored velvet binding or edging of the hood, in different widths for bachelor, master and doctor, is determined by the field of study.

THE CAP

The cap, or mortarboard, has become the universally accepted style for colleges and universities in the United States. Many European institutions still retain distinctive forms of academic headdress.

THE TASSEL

The tassel is perhaps the most iconic souvenir of academic attire. The doctor, following graduation, has the right to wear a gold tassel on the mortarboard; black, however, is perfectly proper and perhaps more common. A tolerated practice of varying the color of the tassel on the others has gained acceptance: arts, white; science, gold-yellow; philosophy, dark blue; education, light blue; business, drab; nursing, apricot; technology and engineering, orange; hospital administration, salmon; public administration, peacock blue; social work, citron; law, purple; medicine, green; theology, scarlet; and allied health professions, mint green.

When I took the role of interim dean here at the Chaifetz School, I never imagined that one of my responsibilities would be seeing you off in the midst of a pandemic. I would prefer to speak to you in person today, and I know you wish to be seated with your classmates and friends. Life, as we are all learning, has a way of upending our expectations.

Despite the current circumstances and this unconventional method of address, I wish to take this time to honor you and your academic accomplishments, which are all the more impressive for the unusual nature of your last months here.

It is no small feat to complete a degree, especially at a rigorous institution like SLU. You have spent countless hours studying for tests and preparing homework assignments. You have balanced your studies with work, spirituality, family, and friends. You have persevered through personal challenges, enjoyed triumphant successes, and now, impressively, you have completed your degree despite an ongoing global pandemic. Sit with that for a moment. There is so much to be proud of.

Your degree is only a piece of what we celebrate today. Think also of the friends and connections you have made here: These are foundational relationships that will sustain you for years to come.

And now you go out into an uncertain world. For those of you who are newly employed or off to graduate school, I offer my congratulations. For those still searching, remember that you are intelligent and capable, that the turbulence of the present will pass, and that even now you are on the path to who you want to become. I have every confidence in your abilities, and SLU will be here to support you in your aspirations long after graduation has passed.

Our graduates leave this school to do incredible things. They become academics, doctors, the engines that propel industry and compassionate leaders, all of which the world needs now more than ever. Today, be proud of your accomplishments and go forth ready to use what you have learned for a higher purpose and the greater good.

I thank you again for the gift of your time here at SLU. On behalf of all of us at the Chaifetz School, congratulations!

Warm regards,

Scott Duellman
Interim Dean, Chaifetz School of Business

SERVICE LEADERSHIP PROGRAM

The Service Leadership Program is a form of stewardship in which individuals are enriched by the vision of community service. The Richard A. Chaifetz School of Business strives to develop leaders who will serve the community in unique ways by providing opportunities to learn leadership skills and to apply the knowledge acquired in the classroom to real community issues. Students who receive a Service Leadership minor have completed 200 hours of community service, attended 12 leadership workshops, and have completed fifteen semester hours in social justice based course work.
