CALL FOR APPLICATIONS: Course Design Institute

Are you . . .

❖ Designing a new course for fall?
❖ Re-imagining an old course?
❖ Eager to create more engaging, powerful learning experiences?
❖ Interested in ways to re-energize your teaching?
❖ Looking for ways to increase student motivation?

If so, the Reinert Center’s Course Design Institute may be for you!

What is it?
The Course Design Institute is a two-week immersive experience that will spark new ways of thinking about your course, empower you to prioritize what matters most to you, and help you to create clear learning paths for students. Most CDI participants leave with 80-90% of their courses designed.

Who should apply?
Instructors willing to explore new possibilities for their course and engage in cross-disciplinary conversations about course design. Note: This is a particularly good opportunity for faculty who don’t have a course release but need time and space to design a new course or re-imagine an existing one.

When is it?
The Course Design Institute will take place June 14-25, through a combination of asynchronous workshop time and synchronous virtual meetings. Synchronous sessions will take place from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on five separate days over the two-week institute. Participants must commit to completing all asynchronous work and to attending all sessions during the CDI.

Interested?

About the Course Design Institute

Now in its second offering, CDI has facilitated course design efforts for many SLU faculty. Grounded in research and based on a national model developed at the University of Virginia, the CDI has helped more than 600 faculty at UVA (and hundreds more around the country) design innovative, transformative learning experiences for students. Faculty routinely praise the CDI as a transformational development experience.