Course description and objectives:

Sociology is the study of the social lives of and interactions among individuals, groups and societies; simply put, it is the study of human social behavior. It is a broad discipline overlapping with and uniting anthropology, economics, history, political science, psychology and women's studies, among other fields. This course introduces students to basic concepts, theories and methods of sociology, covering issues such human behavior in groups, obedience and disobedience of social and cultural norms, and the relationships to culture to behavior. We also discuss structural inequalities within society, focusing on socioeconomic, gender and race-based inequality in the United States. We will also discuss global issues, such as globalization, immigration and development; however, the course focuses on American sociology and US-based case studies. Throughout the term, we will be "doing" sociology by relating aspects of everyday life to the underlying social forces that shape them. Students should come away from the course able to employ their "sociological imagination," i.e. to view personal and particular situations more objectively and broadly through the lens of social analysis. Students will also understand social research methods and will gain the ability to critical evaluate such research.

Requirements:

The subjects covered in this course require careful thought and debate; although the readings will provide essential background to lectures and discussions, I do not teach exclusively from them and your attendance and active participation in class is both expected and necessary in order to do well, with participation being a major part of your final grade. There will be three in-class exams, which will draw on readings, lectures and class discussions. Study questions are given out for most of the readings, and study guides are provided for exams; however, understanding class-time content is essential to do well on the exams.

Grading:

Active, meaningful class participation (see below): 20%
Exam 1: 25%
Exam 2: 20%
Final exam (cumulative): 30%
Discretionary points: 5%

The grading scale is as follows:

93 and above = A
90-92 = A-
87-89 = B+
83-86 = B
80-82 = B-
77-80 = C+
73-76 = C
70-72 = C-
60-69 = D
0-59 = F

Participation grades:

Active, meaningful participation means: 1) attending class regularly; 2) participating in discussions by offering comments that demonstrate understanding of course content; 3) asking questions (and/or answering classmates'/professor's questions) in a way that demonstrates engagement with the material; and 4) being a kind and considerate classmate, which means:

not interrupting others; taking your fair share of discussion time; and reacting to your classmates' comments in a respectful way. As a very general guideline, students that regularly attend and actively and meaningfully participate in class, in a way that demonstrates having done the reading and engaged with the material, receive a participation grade of A. Excellent attendance, but less engaged participation, might merit a B. Students who are frequently absent, rarely or never participate, and/or repeatedly demonstrate inconsiderate behavior, can expect to earn a C, D, or F according to the circumstances. On a regular basis I make notes of students' participation for my own reference – so that after approximately one month into the semester, you can ask me for an estimate of your grade at any point.

Electronic device policy:

Use of laptops, tablets, mobile phones or other electronic devices is not allowed during class.

Attendance Policy:

Repeated unjustified absences or extreme tardiness will affect your class participation grade. Students who arrive at class more than 15 minutes late will be marked tardy. Two tardies equals one absence. The participation component of your grade will be decreased by one full letter for every three unjustified absences beyond the add/drop date. A student with 10 or more unjustified absences will automatically fail the course regardless of exam grades.

Examples of absences that will not be excused:

- An email to your prof stating that you are sick and cannot attend class
- Taking off an extra day for a long traveling weekend

Examples of absences that will be excused:

- Signed/stamped justification that you visited a doctor
- A print-out of documents showing that your flight back from Paris was cancelled
- An email from a professor or Student Life indicating you are on a required class field trip

Missed exam policy:

The exams may only be missed in the event of a medical or family emergency, adequately documented; otherwise, a failing grade will be given.

Policy Statement on Academic Integrity:

The University is a community of learning, whose effectiveness requires an environment of mutual trust and integrity. As members of this community, students, faculty, and staff members share the responsibility to maintain this environment. Academic dishonesty violates it. Although not all forms of academic dishonesty can be listed here, it can be said in general that soliciting, receiving, or providing any unauthorized assistance in the completion of any work submitted toward academic credit is dishonest. It not only violates the mutual trust necessary between faculty and students but also undermines the validity of the University's evaluation of students and takes unfair advantage of fellow students. Further, it is the responsibility of any student who observes such dishonest conduct to call it to the attention of a faculty member or administrator.

Examples of academic dishonesty would be copying from another student, copying from a book or class notes during a closed-book exam, submitting materials authored by or editorially revised by another person but presented as the student's own work, copying a passage or text directly from a published source without appropriately citing or recognizing that source, taking a test or doing an assignment or other academic work for another student, tampering with another student's work, securing or supplying in advance a copy of an examination without the knowledge or consent of the instructor, and colluding with another student or students to engage in an act of academic dishonesty. Where there is clear indication of such dishonesty, a faculty member or administrator has the responsibility to apply appropriate sanctions.

Investigations of violations will be conducted in accord with standards and procedures of the school or college through which the course or research is offered. Recommendations of sanctions to be imposed will be made to the dean of the school or college in which the student is enrolled. Possible sanctions for a violation of academic integrity include, but are not limited to, disciplinary probation, suspension, and dismissal from the University. The complete SLU

Academic Accommodation:

In recognition that people learn in a variety of ways and that learning is influenced by multiple factors (e.g., prior experience, study skills, learning disability), resources to support student success are available on campus. Students who think they might benefit from these resources can find out more about:

Course-level support (e.g., faculty member, departmental resources, etc.) by asking your course instructor.

University-level support (e.g., tutoring/writing services, Disability Services) by visiting the Academic Dean's Office or at http://spain.slu.edu/academics/learning_resources.html.

Students who believe that, due to a disability, they could benefit from academic accommodations are encouraged to contact Disability Services at +34 915 54 58 58, ext. 204, send an e-mail to counselingcenter-madrid@slu.edu, or visit the Counseling Office (San Ignacio Hall). Confidentiality will be observed in all inquiries. Course instructors support student accommodation requests when an approved letter from Disability Services has been received and when students discuss these accommodations with the instructor after receipt of the approved letter.

Policy Statement on Student Work:

Saint Louis University - Madrid Campus is committed to excellent and innovative educational practices. In order to maintain quality academic offerings and to conform to relevant accreditation requirements, we regularly assess our teaching, services, and programs for evidence of student learning outcomes achievement. For this purpose we keep on file anonymized representative examples of student work from all courses and programs such as: assignments, papers, exams, portfolios, and results from student surveys, focus groups, and reflective exercises. Thus, copies of your exams for this course may be kept on file for institutional research, assessment and accreditation purposes. If you prefer that Saint Louis University-Madrid Campus does not keep your work on file, you will need to communicate your decision in writing to your professor.

Readings:

The textbook is a general introduction to sociology, here referred to as Giddens:
Giddens, Anthony. Sociology. Cambridge, UK: Polity Press.
Either the 7th or 8th edition of this book is fine.

There will be additional required readings posted online on Blackboard. Please familiarize yourself with Blackboard as I will use it often to post readings, handouts, slides and grades. I also make use of some films in class, which I treat as texts, making them integral to exams.
