

Rachel Sheridan
'08 POLS, Madrid Campus

Since her time as a student at St. Louis University-Madrid, Rachel has spent her time helping others and improving society for all of us. As a student, she volunteered with the human rights organization, No More Deaths, in Mexico. Upon graduating, she moved to Thailand to teach English to novice monks and to grade school children.

She worked as an Americorps Volunteer, where she worked to restore the ecosystem of the Coconino Rural Environment in Arizona and helped with wildfire fuel reduction, and was then promoted to Assistant Supervisor.

She completed an MS in Forestry through the Peace Corps Master's International program at Northern Arizona University, then volunteered for the Peace Corps in the Mexican Forest Service (CONAFOR) in the state of Tlaxcala. She is now the Volunteer Leader and Coordinator for the Environment Program, providing logistical and technical support to the 70+ Peace Corps Volunteers in Mexico.

She is a woman for others and a woman for all of us.
