

SAINT LOUIS UNIVERSITY™

— EST. 1818 —

THE BANDER CENTER FOR MEDICAL BUSINESS ETHICS

What we do.

The Bander Center for Medical Business Ethics was established in 2007 with the goal of promoting ethical business practices in medicine and healthcare.

We think of ethics as a remarkable human endeavor and believe that a better future can be created by sharing one another's unique professional and personal stories.

Through research, education, and community engagement, The Bander Center endeavors to weave itself into the fabric of contemporary life to better understand, and communicate, the ethical relationships between health care professionals, patients, business and society.

We offer educational opportunities and events throughout the year, all of which are widely advertised and always open and accessible to the public, to ensure we bring together as many diverse voices as possible.

While many of the contemporary questions and problems we delve into have no formal answers, our expertise in creating an environment that encourages exploration of such problems promotes dialogue that can bring about positive change.

relation
point of v

Ethics [et

moral ch

Learn.

Collaborate.

Network.

Claudia Fegan, M.D.

The Signature Event Series

The Signature Event Series provides an opportunity to learn, collaborate and network. The events are designed to ignite imaginations and inspire attendees to take action to have a positive impact in making the world better: starting a project, starting a company, investing in something worthwhile.

Events feature speakers who are actively engaged in or have expertise in some aspect of medical business ethics. From sit down interviews in front of a live audience to a freeform networking reception, these events are held at exciting venues across the St. Louis area to encourage strong attendance.

Nicholson Price, JD, PhD

Artificial Intelligence and Healthcare

Artificial Intelligence and Healthcare is our annual conference focusing on medical business ethics related to technology, data and other aspects of AI. Conferences are focused on the most current roles of AI within healthcare and include topics such as—The law, business and ethics of the use of artificial intelligence in healthcare and The substrate of the future of artificial intelligence and healthcare: patient data.

Katherine J. Mathews,
M.D., MPH, MBA

Innovative Curriculum

The Bander Center sponsors innovative curriculum as a core component of medical school education. Students gain understanding of the financial drivers within healthcare as they are introduced to this complex US industry sector where every dollar spent is someone else's dollar of revenue or profit. Students also work in teams and use cases to practice foundational skills for professional development and ethical leadership.

Sponsorship.
Support.
Partnership.

Policy Workshop and Think Tank

We are looking for business partnerships that will enable us to expand upon “The Policy Workshop and Think Tank” and serve as an incubator for ideas and insights around evidence-based approaches to new developments in medical business and medical business ethics. Big, bold, and data rich, the Bander Center has the ability to create the space for partnerships, to integrate the community to expand on our educational efforts and respond quickly to new issues.

The Bander Center Consulting Group: Bioethics Consulting for Business

What happens at your firm when the lawyers are ambivalent?
What do you do when compliance rules haven’t yet been written?

We call this space “beyond compliance” and it is here where our expertise shines brightest. The Bander Center Consulting Group is a unique consulting firm that knows where and how to find the ethics expertise needed to ensure solutions that will help your company maintain and improve its image of “good”.

Contact our team at www.slu.edu/medicine/bander-center/resources.php
to discuss how we can help you create a strategic advantage consistent with your values.

Partnership

Join Us and Do Good

We invite you to partner with us to support positive change in the everchanging world of business ethics within the medical and healthcare field. In supporting The Bander Center, you, your colleagues and your company strengthen your reputation for doing good by making a tremendous impact on the future of medical business ethics.

Visit our website:
www.slu.edu/medicine/bander-center/index.php

SAINT LOUIS UNIVERSITY

BANDER CENTER FOR MEDICAL BUSINESS ETHICS