

Accredited Academic Units

Updated April 2018

These are entire academic units or organizations that are accredited by independent accreditation agencies/organizations. Technically, their individual programs are not, themselves, “accredited programs” per se; however, we have noted all programs within each such academic unit considered by the accreditor as part of the accreditation process.

Accredited Unit	Accreditation Scope (programs considered in/reviewed as part of the overall accreditation decision)	Accrediting Body	Accrediting Body Website	Year of Most Recent Accreditation Decision	Current Accreditation Status	Year of Next Accreditation Decision

Key to Accreditation Statuses:

Accredited (meaning full accreditation was granted, with no other related obligation or action required)

Accredited* (meaning full accreditation was granted, but the accrediting body required some subsequent action – for example, a follow-up/progress report or interim accreditation review)

Provisional (meaning the program is still going through the initial accreditation period and has not yet achieved an initial full accreditation status; this might be termed “probational” by a given accrediting body)

On Probation (meaning that concerns from the accrediting body prompted some sort of sanction or probation on the program)

Other (meaning none of the above accurately describes the current accreditation status; this status warrants explanation in the Notes column)

Accredited Academic Units

Updated April 2018

These are individual academic programs that are accredited by independent accreditation agencies/organizations. In some cases, the academic unit (typically a SLU college or school) in which such accredited programs are housed also hold accreditation of their own; such unit-level accreditation is cataloged in the “Accredited Academic Units” table above.
