   - Grading scale(s) governing the course
   - Policy on late or missing work/exams
   - Penalties on missed classes and/or tardiness [if applicable]

6. Attendance
   - Expectations for student attendance / presence in the course. (Note: expectations/policies for attendance must align with the University policy on attendance, which may be found here.)

7. Academic Honesty/Integrity
   - Insert and/or link to the approved text, which can be found here.

8. Disability Accommodations
   - Insert and/or link to the approved text, which can be found here. The School of Law, School of Medicine, and SLU Madrid may have alternative versions due to accreditation, regulatory, and/or location-specific differences.

9. Title IX
   - Insert and/or link to the approved text, which can be found here. The School of Law, School of Medicine, and SLU Madrid may have alternative versions due to accreditation, regulatory, and/or location-specific differences.
RECOMMENDED

In addition to Required items listed above, many instructors also find it useful to include information or guidance on a range of other topics. The following list is drawn from common practices at SLU, as well as from the literature on effective syllabus construction and on creating inclusive courses that support student learning and success. This list is by no means exhaustive or in order of priority. Note: for some academic units, items on this list also may be required.

Additional course information:
- An expanded description of the course, its priorities, key concepts, etc.
- Course schedule with due dates for assignments, exams, reading, and other activities
- Disclaimer about the possibility of changes to the course schedule

Additional instructor information:
- Instructor office location and office hours

Additional information about learning activities / assignments:
- Description of informal learning activities students will engage in (e.g., informal in-class activities, participation expectations, service-learning experiences)
- Articulation of the link between course assignments/activities and stated learning outcomes, objectives, and/or competencies

Additional information about course materials:
- Recommended and/or optional readings or texts
- Information about accessing electronic reserves

Additional information about student support resources:
- University-wide academic success and support resources
  - Insert and/or link to recommended text for the Student Success Center here
  - Insert and/or link to recommended text for University Writing Services here
  - Insert and/or link to recommended text for University Counseling Center here
- Course-/program-specific support resources [if applicable]
- Other campus resources relevant to the course (e.g., liaison librarian, residence hall coordinator for learning community courses, etc.)

Additional information about academic honesty:
- Unit-level academic honesty policies and practices [if applicable]
- Course-specific guidance on academic honesty
- Statements of professional ethics or codes of conduct [if applicable]

Other information:
- Course etiquette/civility policies or other expectations about interactions between and among members of the class
- Information about what will happen in cases of inclement weather
- Information about relevant safety/security protocols and procedures (e.g., location of eye wash stations; active shooter response, etc.)
- Distinction between “excused” and “unexcused” absences if applicable and consistent with [University attendance policy]
- Statement that student work in the course may be used in course/program assessment

- Information about requirements for experiential/off-campus learning (e.g., liability waiver, background check, internship learning contract, service expectations, etc.)

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

Below are additional suggestions drawn from the literature on effective syllabus construction and adopted by some SLU instructors. The Reinert Center for Transformative Teaching and Learning can assist instructors who wish to learn more about items on this list. The Reinert Center website also may provide additional information about these considerations.

1. Employ universal design standards to ensure syllabi are accessible for all students.
2. Include a graphic/visual representation of the major components of the course to give students a sense of the purpose and relationships among the components of the course. Learn more about the graphic syllabus here.
3. Include content warnings for content that may inadvertently trigger students who have experienced trauma. Learn more about creating inclusive content statements here.
4. Include a basic needs security statement (like this one, which was developed at SLU) to alert students to campus resources for things like food and shelter insecurity.
5. Share a brief description of the instructor’s philosophy of teaching to give students a way of understanding how she teaches and why.
6. Explain what constitutes successful “engagement” or “participation” in the course to make those expectations explicit and visible (can be especially helpful for first-generation and international students).
7. Share tips for how to be successful in the course (e.g., guidance on effective study strategies, tips for reading course content effectively).
